CARDINAL HITS LOTTERY BILL

BONUS BLOC IN PLEA TO HALT VETO

Veto Time

By International News Service

Washington, May 20—President Roosevelt will deliver in person to a joint session of Congress his message vetoing the Patman bonus bill at 1:30 p. m. eastern daylight time) Wednesday, House leaders were advised today.

In consequence the House adopted a resolution agreeing to receive 'any communication from the President" at that hour.

By International News Service

Washington, May 20—Final appeal to President Roosevelt to approve the bonus bill was made at the White House today by its author Representative Wright Patman, accompanied by a score of House members.

Mr. Roosevelt listened attentively to the argument advanced by the bonus steering committee—but proceeded with his plans to carry a veto message to Congress in person on Wednesday.

"We believe," Patman told the President, "that the country is convinced, after a thorough understanding of the question among veterans and non-veterans, that his debt is really past due, although payable in the fu-

Death Lurks in Play Cave

Shirley Evans' Body In N. Y. Pit

By Associated Press

New York, May 20—Eight-year-old Shirley Evans, missing from her home in Jackson Heights, Queens, since last Friday, was found dead today 250 yards from her home.

Her body was buried beneath a ton of earth in a cave she and playmates had dug in an excavation.

After examining the girl's body at the Queensboro morgue, Acting Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan of the New York police expressed the belief that death was accidental.

"It looks at present," he said, "as if a cave-in had caused the death of the little girl.

"I am beginning to think that some children saw this accident and were afraid to tell about it."

DIG ON HUNCH

The body was uncovered after 10 minutes' digging after a neighbor, Taylor Putney, Jr., had recalled the children's cave his own son, Taylor, six, had helped dig.

"On Saturday," said Putney, "we didn't dream Shirley would be found so close to here. However, I urged the policemen to dig about the foundation. They did to some extent, but of course without success. I worried throughout Sunday and today I went to the foundation contractor and asked him if his men had filled in the children's cave.

"The contractor, Lawrence Di Giovanna, immediately put two men to digging. In ten minutes, after these two—Jimmy Gesuelle and Nick Giovanni—had turned about a ton of earth the body was found. It lay pressed against the cement, hunched over, as if struck without warning. Romeo Feligarn, another workman, aided in finding the body.

MOTHER IN FRENZY

The child's mother, Mrs. Paulina Evans, was dressing when told the news by her husband, William. She broke into frenzied weeping, and it required the efforts of her husband and her mother to care for her.

"I want to go out there," she cried wildly, "I want to do something."

She pressed for details of the finding of the body, how deeply the child was buried and how she lay.

The father couldn't believe it.

"Is it true?" he asked. "Did you see her?"

Window Washer's Fall Broken by Wire Netting; Will Probably Recover

Gaudreau was rushed to the Haymarket Relief Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list.

Both were employed by the Yankee Cleaning Company of Harrison avenue.

Barring internal complications, he will probably recover, they said. He regained consciousness this afternoon but was unable to explain how he fell.

Doctors expressed amazement that he was not killed instantly.

Jackson, who lives in Pearl street, Somerville, told of seeing Gaudreau fall. He said:

"I saw him go from the ledge. It's only a few inches wide, and he lost his balance when his fingers slipped from between the two windows.

"I was working on the next window.

"Gaudreau was using the closed window method, working from the outside instead of leaning out over the ledge and finishing one sash at a time."

Jackson said he had been in the business for 15 years and never missed a day's work until today, when he was too upset by his companion's accident to continue on the job.

ISLAND DOPE EXPOSED BY U. S. 'DRUNK'

Dope traffic on a large scale between Deer Island guards and prisoners has been exposed by a federal undercover narcotic agent.

He served a sentence at the island house of correction as a common drunk, gathering evidence which has amazed officials and will immediately be placed before the federal grand jury.

Of [illegible] involved in the report of [illegible] agent, three have been discharged and two others retired, Master George F. Kennedy of the Deer Island jail announced today.

Complete reports on the evidence gathered, were sent to Mayor Mansfield and John J. Douglass, city penal institutions commissioner, according to Charles A. Burrows, chief of the federal narcotic unit in Boston.

THREE MONTHS' SENTENCE

He found, according to his report, that dope was being smuggled by a friend of a Boston politician to one of the guards on the city "island boat" which takes prisoners and visitors between the city and Deer Island and Long Island.

The undercover agent is understood to have served a sentence of three months.

A new arrest in the case was made when Joseph Glynn, 34, of Dorchester, former prisoner at Deer Island, walked into the federal building today.

Before U. S. Commissioner Jenney, he was charged with conspiracy to violate the narcotic act and jailed in default of $1000 bail. He will be arraigned Wednesday.

Glynn said that while a prisoner he unwittingly carried 60 grains of narcotics in a letter given him on Long Island for another Deer Island prisoner. He said he was given 37 days' punishment.

Mulcahy and Burrows, after a conference today, said the situation at the island had been "cleaned up."

Mulcahy said authorities were trying to locate a guard who vanished from Deer Island on Dec. 17.

Knowles in 2d Round

St. Anne's-on-the-Sea, England, May 20—Robert W. "Bobby" Knowles of The Country Club, Brookline, Mass., entered the second round of the British amateur golf championship here today. The young star crushed D. O'Donnell Higgins of Montreal, 5 and 3.

Eleven Americans were in the field as play started here this morning, with defending Champion W. Lawson Little of San Francisco the favorite. One of the chief threats among the Britons, Jock McLean, fell before J. H. Bryant in the major upset this morning, 1 up.

Alyce Jane's Mother Wins; Named Guardian for Girl

FAMILY SMILE NOW

ALYCE JANE McHENRY PAUL McHENRY

All the McHenrys are smiling today! Alyce Jane, the "upside-down" girl, and her daddy, Paul McHenry, are happy because they've been reunited after a separation of many months. And Mrs. Luella McHenry, Alyce Jane's mother, is smiling because by family agreement she has obtained a court decree making her Alyce Jane's sole legal guardian.

FATHER WITHDRAWS OBJECTION, RECONCILED WITH WIFE

New Bedford, May 20—If Alyce Jane McHenry goes into the movies, it will be under full control of her mother.

Guardianship of the "upside-down stomach" girl was granted to Mrs. Luella McHenry in probate court here today.

McHenry and the two girls did not come here for the court session.

"I understand the guardianship relates to Alyce's property, and not herself, and I am no longer opposed," said the father.

Mrs. McHenry was accompanied to court by her attorney, John B. Cummings of Fall River, and her husband was officially represented by District Attorney William C. Crossley.

The courtroom was filled with spectators. The proceedings were brief.

"I hereby request you to withdraw your appearance for me in the guardianship of my daughter, Alyce Jane. I do not desire to contest any further."

Sole guardianship was granted then to the mother by Judge Mayhew R. Hitch.

The bond was signed by Dr. George C. King and Dr. Philemon E. Truesdale, who performed the operation at Truesdale Hospital, Fall River, which righted Alyce Jane's stomach while the entire nation anxiously awaited the outcome.

"There wasn't any estrangement, but my husband's work took him from our home in Omaha to Iowa Falls, Iowa," said Mrs. McHenry, when questioned after the court session.

"We had a pleasant auto trip together yesterday."

Aged Woman Human Torch

Salem, May 20—An aged retired school teacher was critically burned here today when her clothes caught fire as she cooked her breakfast at a gas range.

Miss Abbie E. Savory, 76, of 12 Federal street, received first and second degree burns and her name was put on the danger list in Salem Hospital.

Babson Sees Roosevelt Win

Wellesley, May 20—The Roger W. Babson statistical organization today announced a survey just completed indicated President Roosevelt would be re-elected in 1936 but nearly half the persons questioned said they had lost confidence in the New Deal.

The study was described as "the first pre-1936 political survey" completed by the organization.

"While many believe a third party ticket will be in the field, the announcement said, "the big majority have no fear of its influence on 1936 results.

"The investigation indicated the majority of the people are not yet worried about inflation. In regard to business—53.7 per cent felt recovery was proceeding in a reassuring manner, while 46.3 per cent either did not see an improvement or felt that recovery was artificial.

"Was the business recovery been because of or inspite of the President's program?" was another question and 52.3 per cent said "because of" and 47.8 per cent said 'in spite of'—again an almost even split."

COURT FAILS To Rule on NRA

Washington, May 20 (AP)—The Supreme Court adjourned today until next Monday without passing on the constitutionality of NRA or the Frazier-Lemke Farm Mortgage Moratorium Act.

PLUNDEROUS RACKET AND IMMORAL, HE WARNS

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Cardinal O'Connell warned the public today that a state lottery would be a "plunderous racket and a political club."

He assailed the state lottery bill now pending in the Legislature. The bill comes up in the House for reconsideration tomorrow.

Declaring the question involved to be moral as well as political, the Cardinal said the lottery would demoralize the people by arousing a passion for gambling "worse than drink," lead to foolish superstitions and fail to benefit the State financially.

The cardinal said:

"A GRAVE MISTAKE"

"I feel that it is my duty to that I am opposed to the s lottery bill.

"It is a grave mistake on th part of legislators to endorse the bill. It will mean nothing else but public gambling. That is the polite word in an out and out way.

"The excuse that the money raised will be turned over to the state and money derived from this sort of gambling will be turned into the state coffers is not a valid one. That should not be the basis of those in favor of the bill.

"PLUNDER"

"This is not merely a political question; otherwise, I would not enter it. It is very serious. It is a moral discussion and not a platonic utterance.

"It is well established and it means the corruption of the people.

"For example, we have had experiences before with state lotteries. We can recall the Louisiana Lottery, which was a flagrant scandal. That was

15 BOSTON EXPERTS VIEW TRIPLE MURDER SKULLS

BONES GUARDED BY GUNS FROM MYSTERY SPY

Vermont officials and Boston police inspectors met in the office of a leading dental expert today in a conference which all hoped would lead quickly to identification of the three skeletons of murder victims found in Middlebury, Vt.

The three skulls, brought from Vermont under police guard, were there and it was announced that 15 Boston orthodontists would be called to view them, either there or police headquarters or the Harvard Dental School.

State's Attorney John T. Conley of Middlebury, who came here armed as a result of a visit of a mysterious stranger to Middlebury, and Police Lieutenant John A. Dorsey of the Boston detective bureau are leading the investigation.

Superintending the search for the dental expert who did expensive work on the teeth of all the victims was Dr. Alfred P. Rogers of Charlesgate West.

BOSTON BROKER LINK

Dr. Rogers expressed the opinion that identification of the victims should be easy, due to the nature of the work done on the teeth of one of them, a girl or boy of about 14 years.

Decision to make the first intensive search for the right orthodontist in Boston rather than in New York was made after discovery that a cottage on Lake Dunmore, Vermont, occupied by a mother and two children, who may have been the murder victims, was leased through a Boston broker.

Lake Dunmore is near East Mountain, where the skeletons were found.

On advice of Boston detectives, Conley telephoned to Vermont and asked Sheriff Ralph Sweet to make a thorough search for two missing teeth in the spot where the skeletons were found.

He also instructed Sweet to have samples of the dirt taken at the University of Vermont laboratories in Burlington for analysis to ascertain what kind or chemical was used to hasten decomposition.

A small gold clasp was found at the scene this afternoon by Miss Margaret Baldwin of East Middlebury and the authorities believe it may eventually prove an important clue.

Postal records are being searched for the names of all persons who leased summer cottages in the vicinity from 1930 through 1933.

MYSTERIOUS SPY

Meanwhile police were seeking a man who made a mysterious week-end visit to Middlebury. He is believed to have used a name not his own.

This man, according to the authorities, evinced considerable interest in the skeletons.

An official police report today [illegible] the middle western city he [illegible] as his home on the hotel register stated no one could be found [illegible] knew him there.

[illegible]s car was registered from another state and police throughout the East have been asked to halt it.

It was because the Vermont authorities believed he might be spying on their activities that Conley armed himself and asked for a police escort for the trip to Boston with the skulls and the tell-tale teeth.

"When I identify these victims," he said, "I shall seek the immediate detention of the husband and father for questioning, if he can be found."

Grisly Package Here, New Clues Sought

INSPECTOR DORSEY TROOPER MURPHY STATE'S ATTY. CONLEY

In the group, at top, are: Inspector John H. Dorsey of the Boston police, Massachusetts State Trooper A. L. Murphy, and State's Attorney John P. Conley of Vermont. They have the sealed box containing parts of the skeletons of Middlebury, Vt.'s., grave mystery murder victims. Among the grisly exhibits brought here in the hope of obtaining clues to the identity of the slain persons is this set of teeth, found in one of the skulls. Investigators hope to find the dentist who did the work. Photographs show the same teeth viewed from two angles. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.

FOREIGN TRADE VITAL TO U. S., ROPER SAYS

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, stressing the importance of America's foreign trade in an address here today, cited as one of the chief benefits its "preparedness" value.

"To live entirely within our own boundaries and upon our own resources would mean scrapping of the American Merchant Marine, with the exception of the ships used in coastal trade," he said.

"This merchant marine serves us not only in peacetime by carrying the nation's commerce, but in wartime acts as a naval auxiliary.

"A program of self-containment would, therefore, destroy our merchant marine, making it necessary for us to absorb its trained personnel in other fields of employment.

WEAKEN U. S. DEFENSE

"More important, it would crippled our naval preparedness program and weaken our national defense.

"The abandonment of our foreign trade would be particularly disastrous to our seaboard cities.

"One has only to take a stroll from the North to the South Station in Boston to realize what consequences would result.

"There would be no need for much of the transportation facilities, for cranes, elevators and other handling devices, for the tugs, the police harbor patrols, the firebouts and the boats engaged in harbor improvement and maintenance.

"There would be much less need for the freight and passenger offices, marine insurance offices, banking facilities, government services such as steamship inspection and customs, and for ship chandlers.

JOBS JEOPARDIZED

"All the people doing this general type of work, with the exception of those necessary to handle our domestic shipping activity, would be thrown out of work. The people supplying them with food, clothing, shelter, transportation, entertainment and education would suffer.

"In normal times one-tenth of the population is dependent, directly or indirectly, on foreign trade. If we are not prepared to accept some imports, we cannot expect to sell volume exports. And we must think more in terms of what other countries need, rather than so much of how we can dispose of certain surpluses of our own."

Secretary Roper spoke at the Hotel Statler on the Nationwide Foreign Trade Week program, and his address was broadcast nationally and on short wave to other countries.

HULTMAN DATA FOR CURLEY

A transcript of the evidence taken in the ouster proceedings before the Governor's Council in the case of Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the Metropolitan District Commission, was received today in the Governor's office from Attorney John P. Feeney.

It is understood that copies of the exhibits will also be in the Governor's hands late today.

When the entire set is completed the evidence and exhibits will be forwarded to the office of the district attorney of Suffolk county for his action.

PUNS DEADLY
He Shoots Himself

Chicago, May 20 (INS) — Some people may like to hear puns through their radios. But not Tony Laicus, 32.

He was listening to an amateur radio program at a tavern radio. The puns were deadly. He tuned out the program. His girl friend, Lillian Thurman, said the entertainment wasn't so bad, and tuned back to it.

So Tony excused himself and fired a shot into his chest. Physicians said he will recover.

Behind the Veto

By ROBERT H. HEMPHILL
Financial Authority

THE President is to address the House and Senate in an appeal to refrain from overriding his veto of the Patman bill, to pay the soldiers an insignificant fraction of the past due debt the nation owes them.

It will be anything but an inspiring spectacle.

The President will present several excuses for vetoing the bill; excuses, but not reasons, as there are no reasons, and of course he knows this very well as does his prospective audience and the majority of intelligent adults in the country.

No senator or congressman will believe in these excuses.

It will be a monumental farce, carried through with the utmost gravity, just as though the principal actors, the President and members of the Senate and House, actually believed in the things which will be said.

IT will be one of the curious phenomena of the control of our political government by a small group of financial reactionaries who will go to any lengths to prevent the government from issuing the money necessary for us to exchange our goods and services.

The soldiers, and their hardship and suffering, and the loss of their liberty during the period of conscription, and the risks forced upon them to preserve the lives and fortunes and freedom of the President and members of the House and Senate and these financial reactionaries, are really only incidental to this question.

THE SAME ARGUMENT WOULD BE USED AGAINST THE ISSUE OF MONEY FOR ANY OTHER PURPOSE

If this 2,200 millions of money is issued and put into circulation, these plutocrats, who own many banks, can never collect interest on it; that is the essence of the situation.

* * *

THE very obvious financial fact is that we must have in excess of thirty billions of dollars of some kind of money—some medium of exchange in circulation to permit us to exchange our goods and services at full production. If the government ever issues this money, this entrenched group will lose their monopoly of furnishing their private credit to supply the deficiency and will, therefore, no longer be able to control the President and Congress or to collect the continuous tribute which our commerce and industry is now compelled to pay them.

These are the real reasons why they are so desperately opposing the issue of real money by the government.

The President will present three principal excuses for his veto.

He will say, first, that the government should not pay out a large sum to only 4 percent of our population.

* * *

HE knows, of course, that we OWE these soldiers this money and that question of the DEBT is not open to debate, therefore, he knows that this is not only no reason, but is not even an excuse.

He will say further that the value of currency inflation is questionable.

He must know, of course, that the issue of additional money will instantly increase the business of the country, but for purposes of this argument he will ignore that obvious fact.

Finally, he will argue that, if Congress overrides his veto, it should provide increased taxes to pay the cost.

* * *

THE reason, and the ONLY REASON for this argument, is that everyone is AGAINST INCREASED TAXES and some sympathy for his position might be attracted by this argument. The President will offer no explanation for this statement. He will merely state it. There is no explanation because the statement is not true.

On the whole, the farcical performance will be an illuminating example of government by professional politicians, wittingly or unwittingly accepting the ideas and expressing the viewpoint of the money-lending monopolists.

LOTTERY BILL ASSAILED BY CARDINAL

"If the lottery bill is passed in this State, it will amount to nothing else but a racket, and a plunderous racket. It will grow to nothing else but a political club.

"DEMORALIZE PEOPLE"

"They will pawn everything in their possession in order to obtain tickets. It will be the ruination of families. Gambling of this sort, or any gambling, is an uncontrollable passion, worse than drink.

"The backers of the bill clamor that the state needs money. It is false. The state gets nothing. Experience has shown us that not only does it demoralize the people but it leads to foolish superstition.

"It is nothing more than a man who stands on a bridge and waits for a white horse and a red-headed woman to cross at the same time.

"DREAM AND GAMBLE"

"The same effects are true with those persons who dream of numbers and count the clouds and gamble the following day in this number racket.

"I hope that the members of the Legislature will thoroughly discuss this bill and not be lured away from it by other influences. I think, little by little, we are coming out of the depression and such a bill meant for the increase of revenue is practically useless.

"I do not want anyone to think that I am fanatical. I am only looking at this in the light of experience and I hope others would do likewise."

CALLS NEWSPAPERMEN

The occasion was the first interview with the Cardinal since his 75th birthday.

He invited the news writers to attend the services and mass next Sunday at 10 o'clock in the St. Thomas More chapel in the Pilot-Catholic Center building on Franklin street.

The Cardinal appeared to be in excellent health and said that he was.

FREED PAIR ASK $10,000 EACH

Seeking $10,000 each from the state, Louis F. Berrett and Clement W. Molway told a legislative committee today the Millen-Faber crimes still cast a shadow over their lives.

The two men want compensation for standing trial for murder in the Lynn Paramount Theater robbery.

As the trial neared its end, the arrest of the Millens and Faber absolved them.

Both men told the House ways and means committee that despite their complete vindication, thousands of persons in Lynn still believe them guilty.

Molway said he had been unable to get steady work and was discharged by a baking company with the explanation that it did not want an employe with the stigma of having been tried for murder.

BROKER LIST FOR DEVER

A list of all stock brokers and salesmen registered with the State Department of Public Utilities for the past five years, was compiled today by John C. Hull, director of the securities division of the State Department of Public Utilities, for submission to Attorney-General Paul A. Dever.

The list was asked by Dever and while he declined to state his purpose, it is understood that it is desired to check up on the investigation of the Public Utilities Department.

Bonus Backers in Final Plea to Roosevelt

ture, and that it can be paid according to our proposal, not only without detriment to the country, but in a way that such payment would be a God-send to the country."

What Mr. Roosevelt said to Patman was not disclosed, but it was reported he merely thanked the congressman for their visit. Their appeal, as such, left him unmoved.

GOOD ENOUGH

It set forth that the government, after the war, paid off the railroads, contractors, "many of whom were profiteers," and discharged its obligations to other citizens in cash. And that the country is financially able to pay off the veterans, there being gold enough in the Treasury to cover 100 per cent all the currency now outstanding or to be issued under the Patman bill.

"It is generally agreed that to bring about recovery," the statement said, "we must restore purchasing power, but we must distribute purchasing power widely among the masses.

"The Patman bill affords us the most efficient plan yet proposed for restoring and distributing purchasing power among the masses.

"The money will be paid to 3,-50,000 veterans in every corner of the land.

"IS NOT A DOLE"

"Veterans will buy food and clothing for themselves and families; they will build new homes and renovate old homes; they will buy automobiles; they will invest in business; and some of them will probably pay their debts, thus providing their creditors with purchasing power.

"Cash payment of the adjusted service certificates will not be a dole.

"It will prove that Americans still regard heroism as a virtue; and that our gratitude does not melt away with the coming of peace."

"Seven thousand war contractors received adjusted pay amounting to billions, after the war was over. Many of them had invalid and illegal contracts which were validated by Congress. They were paid in cash.

"The railroad owners received a guaranteed return during the war, in addition, they were given $5,000,000 a day extra pay for the next six months after being released from government poreation.

ALLIES LENT BILLIONS

"Their adjustments in pay amounted to between one and two billion dollars; they were paid in cash. There were about 500,000 federal civilian employes during the war, all of them receiving $2500 a year or less and had their pay adjusted, and the average received $1,000 extra pay. It was pai din cash.

"Our allies during the war were loaned billions of dollars by our government after the war was over. They used a part of this money to pay their own veterans adjusted compensation and bonuses aggregating as high in some instances as $7200 each.

New 'Veto-Proof' Bonus Bill to Be Offered

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

Washington, May 20 — Certain administration leaders in Congress predicted today that the bonus issue would be resurrected in swift an dsurprising fashion after the defeat of the inflationary Patman bill—a defeat which the leaders call a mathematical certainty.

They claimed 40 or 41 votes in the Senate to sustain the veto message which President Roosevelt is to deliver today against the Patman bill, most likely on Wednesday.

But their more surprising news was this:

One administration chief, who is represented as thinking it would be good politics for the bonus to be paid this year, has made another poll of his own.

He reported that 72 senators would support a plan to push through a bonus bill—in the form of a rider on another measure—giving the President a choice of three ways of paying the adjusted service certificates, instead of the single method of new currency contained in the Patman bill.

Since only two-thirds are necessary to over-ride a veto and the Senate—even at full strength—contains only 96 members, such a plan would go through to enactment if 72 senators stuck to it to the end and the House concurred.

The proposed rider would direct that the bonus be paid. It would, however, leave to the President the choice between issuing currency, borrowing, or taking the money out of his $4,880,000,000 public works funds.

The American Legion, making a final effort to bring about an overriding of the veto has begun concentrating a drumfire of telegrams on 32 senators.

The 32 listed are:

Bonus Fire

In a final effort to bring about an overriding of the bonus veto, legionaires opened a drumfire of telegrams to New England Senators today.

Targets in the broadside were Walsh and Coolidge of Massachusetts, Austin of Vermont and White of Maine.

PAY THE BONUS NOW!

To Senator .....
Washington, D. C.

I believe that the World War veterans should be paid their promised bonus NOW.

I believe that the Patman veterans' bonus bill provides the best method of discharging this patriotic obligation.

Both Houses of Congress have passed this bill and its defeat by Executive veto would be most unjust for the defenders of the republic.

I, therefore, appeal to you as my representative in Congress to cast your vote in favor of sustaining the Patman bill and against its veto.

Alone He Won One War

'ALL BRITAIN SAD FOR HERO

By International News Service

Wool, Eng., May 20—A great spontaneous movement to lay Lawrence of Arabia, "king-maker," among Britain's kings in Westminster Abbey swept a mourning country today, but for the time being the legendary hero's wish for the obscurity in death that he could never attain in life will prevail.

Attended only by members of his family and a few friends who fought with him in his incredible "revolt in the desert," funeral services will be held tomorrow for "Lawrence of Arabia" in the village church of Moreton, near where he lived in a quiet cottage.

T. E. Lawrence will probably be interred there, but later the demand that he rest in Westminster Abbey with the unknown soldier and Britain's other great warriors, writers and statesmen may know no denial.

Lawrence, who died yesterday at 46 in the Bovington Camp Military Hospital, never regained consciousness after his skull was fractured when he was hurled off his motorcycle in trying to avoid a boy cyclist.

"UNCROWNED KING"

Today his body, wrapped in the Union Jack, for which he fought, lies in a mortuary awaiting a coroner's inquest, set for tomorrow.

Modest as the funeral here will be, nobler tribute will be paid in London at a later memorial service, when the great men of the empire may honor him.

His mother and a brother, who are at an unknown spot in China, still do not know of his death. Another brother was at his side.

"Lawrence, uncrowned king of Arabia," spent the last ten years of his life as a private in the Royal Air Force, living on $1000 a year, although he might have held a high post in the government service, or been rich on the proceeds from his book, "Revolt in the Desert."

Rumors said he went to his death with important secrets dealing with British arms, and it was well known that he had been working on a "supposedly unsinkable torpedo boat," risking his life in experiments.

Out of the murk and thunder of the Great War, up from the flames and heat of the desert, there emerged the war's most mysterious and glamorous figure, "Lawrence of Arabia."

RULED DESERT EMPIRE

This strange little man (he was five feet five and one-half inches) sought to efface himself by his extravagant modesty.

He ruled an empire, a desert empire. And he is credited with breaking the Turkish Empire, single-handed almost, by raising Arabs against the Turks and changing the fate of the Allies on the Palestine war front. The Turks offered $50,000 to anyone who would bring in Lawrence of Arabia, dead or alive.

Lawrence was born in Tremodic, Wales. He was one of five sons. His childhood was spent in Scotland, the Isle of Man, Jersey, France, and Hampshire.

FRIEND OF ARABS

When the war started Lawrence was first turned down and then got a temporary job in the Geographical Section of the General Staff.

COLONEL T. E. LAWRENCE
Death Takes World War Hero

In four months he was sent to Egypt. The routine of army life irked him. He, in turn, irked his superiors. They were glad enough to grant him a ten-day leave, and he headed straight across the Red Sea to Arab territory.

He became the intimate friend of Feisal, chief power of the Arab forces, and of Auda, sheik of the Abu Tayi Howeitat, and the most feared fighter in Arabia. Lawrence rose to tremendous power. Not even Field Marshal Lord Allenby, in command of the Allied forces in Palestine, interfered with any orders Lawrence issued from his desert kingdom.

He was angered and embittered by the actions of the British Government in repudiating its promises. He even said as much personally to King George, according to the story told by Robert Graves, the poet.

HIS LITERARY CAREER

Lawrence published privately the book, "Seven Pillars of Wisdom," his history of the Arab revolt, and from this wrote the popular "Revolt in the Desert."

He found time to translate the Odyssey, a translation that is ranked among the best in the English language. He also "puttered around" with engines and worked on a nautical armored speedboat in the hope of producing a mile-a-minute craft for the British Navy.

When he retired to Dorset—the Hardy country—he lived alone in a cottage without telephone or electric light.

Famous men in every field joined in paying honor to his genius. Winston Churchill even hinted that had he lived, Lawrence might have risen like a Joan of Arc to help his country through another crisis.

MEDFORD WIFE Burned by Wax

Mrs. Francis A. Coughlin of Marshall street, Medford, was burned on the legs and arms today when she attempted to smother a blaze in the kitchen of her home.

She was melting some wax when it boiled over and ignited. Damage was slight.

Frost Reported

Spring crops were menaced early today as the mercury dropped sharply soon after midnight. Touches of frost were reported in sections of Middlesex county.

MADMAN In the CLOUDS

FIGHT IN CRASH OF GORKY

By Associated Press

Moscow, May 20—A desperate battle in a motion picture plane accompanying the Maxim Gorky at the time of Saturday's disaster was disclosed today as having almost caused a second accident.

The pilot of the smaller plane, V. Rybushkin, said that after a stunting aircraft had crashed into the Gorky, world's largest land plane, a motion picture operator lost his head, leaped upon him and attempted to strangle him and pull him away from the controls.

"I lost command of my ship, it went into a spin, and there was nothing for me to do but to strike my companion in the face," the pilot said.

"This treatment finally calmed him and he slumped into his seat, remaining still until I managed to get out of the spin and land."

It was not disclosed whether the operator filmed the crash in which 49 persons lost their lives before he became panic-stricken, but no pictures of the disaster have been published.

Pilot's Stunts

Rybushkin said he heard Ivan Mikhaeff, one of the Gorky pilots, warn Pilot Blagin, who was operating the craft which caused the crash, against stunting, before the planes took off.

"Don't try any loops," Mikhaeff was said to have admonished. "You would certainly crash into my ship."

Rybushkin declared:

"After the Gorky completed a short flight and as we were returning to the field, Blagin began making turret rolls. Then Blagin began looping.

"Coming out of the second loop, he lost speed and crashed into the Gorky's right wing. Apparently he crashed into oil tanks, because a quantity of black smoke came from the Gorky.

Victims' Rites

"The rest of the plane turned on its back and then plunged to earth.

"I was paying no attention to the movie operator. Suddenly he leaped upon me from the rear and got a strangle hold upon my throat. He tried to pull me away from the controls."

The bodies of most of the victims of the Gorky disaster have already been cremated and the urns containing their ashes placed on display in the Labor Union House in the center of the city.

Today they will be deposited at the Monastery of the New Virgin, where Peter the Great imprisoned his sister, Sofia. Victims whose relatives are opposed to cremation will be buried in the same place.

Gandhi and Aimee Agree to Disagree

MAHATMA GANDHI

AIMEE SEMPLE McPHERSON

One thing is sure. Mahatma Gandhi is no convert to Aimee Semple McPherson's "Four Square Gospel." But he and the famous woman evangelist of Angelus Temple are friends, now that they've met, in India. Sister Aimee, however, is a little bit shocked. She just can't help it. Because Gandhi—she saw him, herself—"kneels to Hindu gods" and "says Hindu prayers!"

GANDHI SHOCKS "SISTER" AIMEE

AT SHRINE OF HINDU GODS

By Universal Service

Los Angeles, May 20—Aimee and Gandhi . . . !

Naked save for that famous loin-cloth, sitting cross-legged on the floor, twirling his incessant spinning wheel with one hand while he gestures with the other, sits Gandhi.

And thus in a long letter from India, to her Angelus Temple intimates, "Sister" McPherson told of her memorable meeting with the Mahatma.

The evangelist, in the letters, says she was "deeply impressed by the fire and indomitable spirit which was burning deep within the eyes behind those steel-rimmed spectacles."

But she was shocked indeed to realize he worshipped images! Her letter says:

". . . Gandhi kneeled before the shrines of Hindu Gods and prayed Hindu prayers . . . it came as somewhat of a shock."

It was by telegram that Gandhi invited her.

To visit the Mahatma, Aimee rode through the mean streets of the little village wherein Gandhi makes his headquarters—rode on the slippery, sloping, backwards-riding seat of a native cart, clinging frantically lest the slide off and land in the roadway dust.

She "hung on for dear life." She writes of the meeting itself:

"An humble, bare, clean white-washed room which a broadside of light from a high window revealed to be devoid of other furniture than a low desk, a spinning machine, two or three floor cushions and a shelf of books."

On the floor cushion was a thin, almost emaciated man who had been sitting with his back to the wall, whose spirit dominated and electrified the air.

He brought his two brown hands together, finger-tip to finger-tip, and raised them to his forehead with the customary "Salaam."

Then stretching forth his hand he took mine in a warm and hearty grip. I could but say to myself:

"So this is he whom they call the soul of India!"

Aimee, fascinated by the spinning wheel, asked to test the thread Gandhi was making. It was weak to her touch, she revealed, but Gandhi told her when it was spun into "Gandhi cloth" it was strong enough.

Women Vote On Birth Curb

A resolution favoring birth control will come before the annual convention of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, which opened in Swampscott today.

The convention, with 1500 delegates representing 53,000 club women, will continue through Thursday.

For the first time, the governor has not been invited to attend as a guest of honor on a governor's night.

Club officers, denying any intention of slighting Governor Curley, said they had planned, instead of a governor's night, to hold a testimonial to Mrs. Grace Morrison Pools, president of the general federation. She is past president of the state federation.

Liberals 'Snub' New Senator

By Associated Press

Washington, May 20— Five members of the Senate liberal bloc walked out of the chamber today as Dennis Chavez, New Mexican Democrat, was administered the oath as successor to the late Bronson Cutting, Republican.

As the 44-year-old Chavez, a former member of the House, went to the dais on the arm of Senator Hatch (D.) ofNew Mexico, Senators Johnson of California, Norris of Nebraska and Nye of North Dakota, Republican independents, and Shipstead(Farmer-Labor, of Minnesota, and LaFollette, Progressive of Wisconsin, walked out of the chamber.

Their action was interpreted by observers as a protest against the appointment of Chavez, but there was no immediate formal explanation.

City Offices Flooded

The water on the eighth floor was turned off Saturday, while some repair work was being done. Somebody tried a faucet and getting no water left it on.

As a result, when the water was turned on again, it overflowed and seeped down to the three floors below.

The telephone exchange was flooded but wiring was not affected.

A typewriter, several pictures, unfiled letters and unused stationery were damaged in the sewer division, and there was similar damage in other departments.

The ceilings will have to be repaired.

TRAIN CHILDREN For Turk Army

Ankara, Turkey, May 20—The cabinet approved a plan for compulsory pre-military training for more than 500,000 Turkish children of both sexes.

He Walks

By Associated Press

New London, Conn., May 20—Professor Albert Einstein, renowned physicist, walked the streets of this city recognized by comparative few, when his automobile broke down as he and his party were passing through in search of a summer cottage, it became known today.

While his car generator was being repaired in a local garage, Prof. Einstein, week-end guest of Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Dunn, of Waterford, and a man companion, strolled about New London's streets for several hours.

BIRTH Control BATTLE

PRIESTS HEARD AT STATE HOUSE

Anti-birth control legislation held the center of interest in a hearing today before the House Committee on Rules on Beacon Hill.

Supported by a group of legislators, Catholic clergy and laymen, Representative Lawrence P. McHugh, of Boston urged admittance of his bill to establish a board of three in the state pharmacy division to preserve public health.

McHugh stated that 1,100,000 Catholics in Massachusetts are incensed over the activities of the Birth Control League, which he denounced as a "racket."

He cited cases where preventatives were sold to high school pupils in Greater Boston.

Monsignor Patrick F. Doyle of Springfield recorded Bishop O'Leary of Springfield in favor of the bill. He claimed the present law does not operate and the proposed bill would put teeth in the law.

Birth control clinics were roundly scored by a number of speakers, including Representatives Thomas Dorgan of Dorchester, John Aspell and Francis X. Coyne of Boston, Mrs. James H. Murray, representing the Catholic Daughters of America; Louis Watson, Knights of Columbus; Rev. Thomas W. Reynolds, representing Cardinal O'Connell; Representative Charles H. Shay of Cambridge and Representative Michael Carroll of Lynn.

Dr. Robert L. DeNormandie of Boston, while agreeing that the sale of preventatives to high school children was "wicked and should be prevented," opposed the bill from a medical standpoint.

'White Water!' Will They Make It? Answer Is 'No!'

It's 35 long years since Captain E. F. Coburn of Middle Dam, Maine, successfully ran Rapid River's "white water" in a canvas canoe. Here are John Lavorgna of Canton, Mass., and Bert Quimby of South Wrentham, Mass., in a gallant try at duplicating Captain Coburn's feat. Treacherous rocks are lurking in their path. The terrific force of the current is setting their strength at naught. Lavorgna, in the stern, is exercising all his skill. Quimby, in the bow, is ready to stave off disaster, when it menaces. It's a vain attempt. They're due for a spill. Coburn's record stands! (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

THIEVES AND ROBBERS GIVEN BEST SOVIET JOBS

It relates the personal experiences of a prisoner who escaped the cruel death which so many of his fellows suffered and fled to China.

Here follows a series of extracts taken verbatim from his narrative:

By "ERASTUS"
Author of "Solovky"
Sixth Installment
CRIME PAYS

THERE is a third section of the Communist party, consisting of the criminal element; people for whom the revolution opened the prison doors, and who rushed into the Communist party because they realized the Communists would not remind them of their past and would allow them to continue their criminal activities (unmolested) unpunished.

"ERASTUS"

In order to give some idea of this dark, criminal element of Soviet regime, I shall give two examples, one taken from a village and the other from a town.

The president of the executive committee in the Stanitza Novoleshkovska of the Couban region was the Communist Comrade Oubykon, a professional horse-stealer, well known in the whole of the district. Besides, before the revolution he had been condemned to penal servitude for violating his 12-year-old sister. Before him this post had been held by Comrade Passetchny, a former accomplice of Oubykon in horse stealing.

ESCAPES LYNCHING

In 1911 Passetchny by a mistake escaped being lynched by the villagers in the church square of the above mentioned Stanitza. Six of this band of eight horse-stealers were killed. Passetchny succeeded in escaping, and Oubykon remained alive simply because he was serving his sentence in Siberia.

Another member of the executive committee — Ozersky — had been a well known local thief. He specialized in stealing corn (grain) from barns (storerooms) by boring holes in the floor. He had been imprisoned again and again, but each time he fell back into his bad habits of stealing. Finally he was condemned to another six months, and at the petition of the villagers was banished from the district. Now, under the Soviet regime Comrade Ozersky occupies an important post, congenial to his former speciality, grain.

SIX YEARS' SENTENCE

Another member of the committee—Pikaloff—who was at the same time the military commissary of the Stanitza, was sentenced to six years' hard labor for robbery and murder at a bank in Ekaterinodar.

Still another member of the executive committee was Comrade Komoff, who stood at the head of the educational department. He was a former convict, liberated, like many others, by Bolsheviks. He was sentenced for the murder of the procurator of the city of Lougansk, Exaterinoslav government.

It is difficult to add anything else to these facts except that all the other members of the executive committee were no better than these.

Now let us consider the other example from a big town, Rostoff.

The president of the executive committee of this town was Comrade Patrikeyeff. He did not belong to the district. I began to make inquiries about him when the Bolsheviks gave the order to arrest me and to put me in prison.

Thus I must begin with his assistant, Comrade Tcherepashin. Up to 1905 he was employed in the workshops of the Vladicaucas railway.

At one time a number of thefts of metals had been committed, so it had become necessary to have the workmen searched on leaving the works. The indignant workmen decided to find the thief themselves.

EXECUTIVE THIEF

He turned out to be Tcherepashin, the future assistant president of the don executive committee.

In order to escape an open scandal the workmen (his fellow workers) asked him to leave the works immediately.

Soon after this, Tcherepashin managed to get work as a carriage cleaner at the station Rostoff-Kavka. It was not long before he was caught again stealing brass taps, mirrors and other property from the first class railway carriages which he was supposed to clean. He was sentenced to one year and nine months imprisonment.

Another member of the Rostoff committee, who was at the same time head of the administrative department, Comrade Koshkintzeff, had been convicted for the theft of material from the waterworks of Novotcherkassk.

KNOWN AS THIEF

Comrade Oudolnikoff was known in the south of Russia as a thief. He had been, on the day of the entry of the Red army into Rostoff, at the head of the thieves and other bandits, who were anxious to burn the compromising documents taken from the Rostoff police station. Now this man was a member of the executive committee and head of the criminal investigation department; and so on, without end.

Considering these examples, one can form a fair opinion of the elements that the Don committee was composed of.

The reader can surely give to himself an account as to the number and quality of the Russian Communist party. What about its organization—WHO ACTUALLY RULES U. S. S. R.?

Sight-Seeing Hop, Dead Motor—Then This!

Holiday at Selfridge Field, near Flint, Michigan. Brisk business of taking sight-seers aloft for short hops. Two motors of this big plane unaccountably dead, a scant 200 feet from the ground. A quick crash. The pilot, a roman passenger and the latter's son, all dead! Narrow escapes for the ground crew, quartered in the tents ust missed by the falling machine. ETHIOPIA OPENS Peace Move

Geneva, May 20—Ethiopia launched a move to get her dispute with Italy settled by arbitration.

On the eve of a session of the League of Nations council which will consider the quarrel, it was learned the Ethiopian minister plans to press for the appointment of a fifth neutral arbitrator or umpire.

Not a Tooth

Nashua, N. H., May 20 (AP)—The classification "unsolved mystery" probably will be written today beside the entry on the police record of the discovery of a skull last Saturday by boys playing ball.

Police had nothing to work on in efforts to determine the identity, as there were no teeth in the skull.

DYE STRIKERS Back, Get Pay Boost

Woonsocket, R. I., May 20 (AP)—The 1000 workers in eight commission dye houses who voted Saturday to strike, unless wage increases and other adjustments were made, were back at work today, partial victory.

The majority of the owners agreed to the wage demands and the workers returned pending meetings on other differences. The wage boost amounted to from five to 20 per cent.

PARODI DIES Cameraman's Father

Andrew Parodi of 4 Mechanic court, North End, father of Joseph Parodi, Boston Evening American photographer, died in his home today after an illness of two months.

Funeral services will be conducted in Sacred Heart church, North End, Wednesday. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, his son and two daughters.

LYNN GOLD STAR MOTHER DIES

Mrs. Clara M. Hurd, 56, first president of the Lynn Gold Star Mothers, died of a heart attack at her home, 33 Jenness street, Lynn, today.

She attended a banquet in Revere last night.

She had returned a few days ago from Washington, where she attended memorial services at Arlington cemetery.

The square at Broad and Washington streets, Lynn, is named in memory of her boy, Audrey, who died overseas during the World War.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Hurd is survived by another son, Walter, and several brothers and sisters.

This new course, which will be started by Harvard next year, is intended to fit men for the higher positions in government service.

More Rain! Flooded Farms' Plea

By Associated Press

Tempie, Tex., May 20—Farmers in the flooded lowlands near here say they will need more rain in the next day or two.

Euel Evans, whose farm was flooded by recnt heavy downpours, said:

"When the river goes down, the muck will dry up in the buds of the grain, the cotton will scald and the land will clod up and crust.

"It will take a good rain then to prevent a heavy loss to the crops."

CURLEY OFF For Funds Fight

Governor Curley was in Washington today determined to secure an additional allotment from the government over the $19,000,000 allocated for work relief measures last week.

Accompanied by Former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan, Governor Curley left suddenly for the capital last night.

"I am going to Washington to fight for all I can get," the governor declared as he boarded the train.

12 MORE DIE In Car Accidents

Death rode the Massachusetts highways again last week as 12 persons were killed in automobile accidents. The total for the year is 330, according to Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin.

Most of the fatalities were due to lack of cars in handling heavy trucks while working on construction or backing out of a driveway, the registrar said. Twenty-one drivers received jail sentences for drunken driving and 132 licenses were revoked.

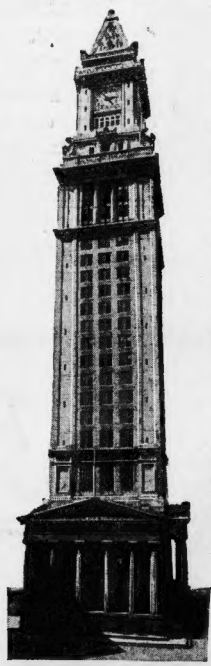
GENERAL BENJAMIN LINCOLN, the first Collector of Customs at Boston, was long a customer of our forebear, the Massachusetts Bank

New England Carries on Its Tradition of Trade with the World



IN 1784, when this bank was founded, New England was seeking new markets for trade, new ports of call for her ships and sailors. Boston merchants had little of home manufacture to export, yet their Yankee shrewdness sensed the rich profits in store from trade with the Orient. By the beginning of the nineteenth century, more ships were clearing for the Far East from Boston and Salem than from any other American ports.

The Empress of China was the pioneer vessel in the China trade. In 1784 she headed for Canton laden with high hopes and a cargo of lumber and rum. She returned with tea and silk to make her owners a handsome profit and laid the cornerstone of New England's trade with the Far East.

From 1784 until after the Civil War, "Old Glory" whipped in the breeze in every world port, signalizing the most prosperous period in the history of American shipping. We honor that era when dauntless New Englanders sailed the seven seas to trade with the world.

But New England is not living in the past today. Its manufacturers offer the world a more diversified list of products than any other industrial section of the United States.

This bank commends the efforts of the merchants and manufacturers who are determined that New England shall maintain the high rank she has inherited in world trade.

SCHUSTER RAPS 2 G.O.P. STATE LEADERS

Westfield, May 20—Ousting of John Richardson and Mrs. Mabel Bachelder, Massachusetts' two Republican national committeemen, was demanded today by Winfield A. Schuster of Douglas, Republican member of the Governor's Council.

In a naddress before the Westfield District Republican Club, Schuster delivered a schating arraignment of the two committeemen.

Not until they are removed from their dominating position can Massachusetts hope to regain her place of national prominence, he asserted.

He charged that Richardson's purpose in retaining control is to have a "select social set" on the one hand and on the other to control the delegation from this state to the national convention in 1936 for the purpose of renominating Herbert Hoover.

OPPOSES HOOVER

"And right now," the councillor declared, "let me make myself perfectly clear on one point. I am opposed to Mr. Hoover as the Republican nominee in 1936."

Richardson, Mrs. Bachelder and "a select handful of a few others are slowly strangling to death the Republican party in this state," Schuster continued. The 80-odd members of the state committee, he said, have been "powerless to do anything about it."

PROPOSES CANDIDATE

Republicans in Massachusetts as well as nationally, Schuster asserted, must pick candidates in no way connected with the old order, candidates who are liberal, progressive and young in ideas.

As examples of the type of men he has in mind to rebuild the party here, the councillor named Congressman A. Piatt Andrews of Gloucester, Mayor Sinclair Weeks of Newton, District Attorney Warren Bishop of Middlesex county, former Governor's Councillor Mark Duff of New Bedford, Representative Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Beverly, Congressman Joseph Martin of North Attleborough, and former District Attorney Robert Bushnel of Middlesex county.

This Railway Is Going on Long Ride

By Associated Press

Nashua, N. H., May 20—Locomotives, trackage, rolling stock and station properties of the Sandy River & Rangeley Lakes Railroads, sold Saturday for $20,200, will experience some long distance traveling after July 1.

Harry F. Kamenske, who bought the little 40-mile narrow gauge Maine railroad at auction, said it would operate until July 1 and then be dismantled.

Kamenske said 10,000 tons of steel, which the road contains, already had been sold to a Japanese firm. It will be shipped from Portland, Me., as soon as possible.

The locomotives, which have functioned faithfully for many years, have been sold, too. And when their last run is made they will be packed aboard ships and sent to their new destination—Nicaragua.

3000 VETERANS Honor Hero Dead

More than 3000 World War veterans and their friends and relatives paid tribute yesterday to deceased buddies.

At St. Paul's Church, Hartford street, Roxbury, impressive memorial services were held by the James P. Mahoney Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Roxbury.

The East Boston branch of the Italian World War veterans celebrated the 20th anniversity of Italy's entrance into the World War with a colorful parade which was followed by religious services at Mt. Carmel Church.

BLANKET THEFT Costs Student $25

Northampton, Mass., May 20 (INS)—Pleading guilty to a charge of stealing a blanket from a local hotel, Frederick Babcock, 21, who said he was a Dartmouth student and son of a former mayor of Pittsburgh, Pa., was fined $25 in district court today.

Babcock said he had intended to use the blanket on a picnic with two Smith College girls and then return it.

"Hot Cha" Star Bright Light

Why She Missed Screen Test

By Universal Service

New York, May 20—Trial of the $250,000 beauty suit brought by Eileen Wenzel, show girl, against Louis J. Ehret, Jr., of the brewing family, opens in Supreme Court today.

Justice Aaron Levy and a jury will decide whether and to what extent the pulchritudonous plaintiff deserves damages.

Conceded by all concerned is the fact that Miss Wenzel was injured in an automobile accident in a celebration following the closing of the musical comedy, "Hot-Cha," three years ago.

Frank McDonald, described as a clubman, was slightly injured. Vera McDermott, a Canadian girl, was cut and bruised.

Miss Wengel was taken to Park East Hospital where many stitches were needed to remedy many cuts.

Miss Wenzel estimated $250,000 as the value of her damaged beauty and loss of employment.

She was to have taken a screen test the day after the accident.

JANE ADDAMS Shows Slight Gain

Chicago, May 20 (INS)—Hope mounted today for the recovery of Miss Jane Addams, seriously ill in Passavant hospital following an emergency operation for abdominal adhesions.

Dr. James Britton reported a slight gain in the noted social worker's condition after Miss Addams had taken her first nourishment since the operation Saturday.

BANKING BILL CAMPAIGN BY FR. COUGHLIN

By Associated Press

Detroit, May 20—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin marshalled witnesses today to present the case of his National Union for Social Justice at a Senate hearing on the Nye-Sweeney banking bill, which would nationalize the federal reserve system.

Father Coughlin said in a radio address last night that the National Union, "encouraged" by the testimony of Secretary of the Treasury Henry J. Morgenthau, Jr., before the Senate banking and currency committee last week, had applied for an immediate hearing on the measure before that group.

He hailed Morgenthau as the first federal official "to propose the government ownership of the central banking system."

Fr. Coughlin reiterated his defense of the Patman bonus bill on what appeared to be the eve of its veto by the President. But regardless of the White House course, the priest said: "The people have decided" on the measure, which he termed a "real test" of the union's monetary policies.

He termed "insignificant," however, the accomplishments of his organization in the World Court and bonus disputes "compared to what you are about to do in supporting the Nye-Sweeney bill, without which the sane distribution of wealth would be impeded."

Fr. Coughlin parried the epithet, "printing press money," with the statement that the union advocates only currency solidly backed by gold or silver in the treasury, in contrast with "the penmanship, or checkbook, money of the bankers."

HOLDEN HOME, FEARS WOMEN

John J. Holden of Middle street, Newton, sweepstakes winner of $73,000, who said "spongers" and romantic women drove him to flight, returned today on the liner Laconia.

Leaving on his travel trip abroad early in April, with three relatives and two neighbors, Holden said he had to get away from a never-ending stream of pleas for money—or his heart.

He declared:

"It was a great trip. There were no salesmen rapping on my door, nobody begging from me with hard luck stories, and no letters from women saying they have been kissing my picture till it hurts.

"I hope the letters haven't piled up in my absence."

Holden and his friends witnessed the leading events of King George's silver jubilee. Most of all, he said, they enjoyed travel in Ireland.

The Laconia brought 287 passengers from Liverpool and Cobh.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Hollywood, May 20—Samuel Goldwyn and Anne Sten, the Russian actress he spent close to a million to put over in America, have parted company.

To the outside world a formal announcement has been issued stating that Goldwyn and Miss Sten had cancelled her contract by mutual consent. This contract still had 15 months to go and called for $3000 a week.

To those of use who have watched Miss Sten develop from an unknown into a glamorous star it is apparent there is something behind this decision to end a star-relationship that was so widely publicized and so successfully managed.

Reports varied. One rumor was that Dr. Frenke did not agree with the manner in which his wife was presented. He had certain ideas for her which Goldwyn refused to consider. Other reports were that Miss Sten wanted to make more than one picture a year, and still another persistent bit of gossip is that Miss Sten had gone temperamental. She refused on several occasions Sam's request to see interviewers and to make appearances arranged for her in conjunction with her pictures.

Neither Goldwyn nor Dr. Frenke were willing to discuss the abrogation of the contract. Each insisted the parting was on friendly terms. Miss Sten is in Peoria making personal appearances and she returns early this week.

2 SPRINGFIELD PAPERS PRINT UNDER GUARD

Springfield, May 20—Under heavy police guard following yesterday's first violence, strike-breaking printers today turned out the usual editions of the News and Union.

Thirty strike-breakers imported to print the Sunday Republican and Union returned to Paterson, N. J., with the jibes of strikers ringing in their ears. Four were hurt last night in a clash with pickets.

As a result of the fight and damage to linotype machines, 50 police and detectives were on strike duty.

Strikers stormed police headquarters, declaring they had attempted to carry on peaceful picketing but were forced to resort to violence due to attacks by strikebreakers, whom they characterized as "sluggers" and "strong-arm men."

Non-union printers were put to work Saturday and put out a regular edition of the Sunday Republican and Union yesterday.

Sabotage also appeared yesterday when belts of linotype machines were cut, keyboards damaged and ads, set up previously, destroyed.

Union officials denied any complicity in the vandalism and declared they were trying to conduct orderly picketing. They held out little hope for early settlement of the trouble.

This Is Life
ROBERT E ROGERS

I had the pleasure on Saturday evening of speaking at the dinner celebrating the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Medford high school.

It was the last event on an interesting three-day program of celebration. The following paragraphs are a portion of my remarks.

Robert E. Rogers

Although the one hundred years of the Medford High may seem a short span of time in comparison with the three hundred years of the Boston Public Latin School and of Harvard College, both of which tercentenaries are being celebrated this year, yet the fact which this celebration stands for is no less important in the history of American education.

I cannot put my finger on the date of the first tax supported high school in Massachusetts, but I do know that the free high school as an institution is not much older than this school.

The Boston Latin school was, of course, in no way different from the Latin Grammar school of old England, such as Shakespeare attended at Stratford and Milton at St. Paul's in London. It aimed at the university.

Besides that kind of school, however, there was the Writing school, of which the Eliot school, that recently celebrated its anniversary, is the oldest hereabouts. Such a school taught reading, writing and ciphering, the elementary commercial subjects, and did not prepare for college.

Devoted to Learning

The first generation of Englishmen in the Bay Colony were devoted to learning and kept up their schools efficiently.

The later generation, in the late 17th and 18th centuries allowed education to fail to a low level. This was true even in England, as Samuel Johnson and Gibbon the historian testify to us.

We have also the report of a Dutch traveler Jasper Dankers who visited Harvard College in 1680 and found it a very small academy of boys idling their time away in an atmosphere of tobacco smoke and drink, almost illiterate in their Latin. The famous John Whitefield, the Methodist, found things not much better.

The public schools were at an equally low ebb. If there were four villages in a township the teacher would take each one in turn, the children thereby going to school only two or three months in the year.

This, I take it, is the period of the founding of the endowed academies which long were the pride of New England education, supported by the cultured and well-to-do that their children might have an education which the community could not or would not provide.

Some of these schools survive today as strictly private schools, some have been taken over by the towns as public high schools, others act in double capacity as fitting schools of the old sort, and as the public high schools as well.

Teachers Young

As late as the first quarter of the 19th century, education in the public grammar schools was highly disorganized and inefficient. The teachers were not trained, the schools were mostly ungraded.

Calvin Coolidge's sister qualified as a teacher at the age of 15 and my own grandmother in Massachusetts at 15.

Then came the reformation which climaxes with the revolutionary work of Horace Mann.

But by the time he came to influence in Massachusetts earlier pioneers had undertaken to reform the textbook evil or lack of system—, a beginning was made of a normal school where teachers might be trained, teaching methods were profoundly modified by the new German influence, and, above all, the High School was created, to give to the children who had neither the money or inclination or talent for a college education something that might be reasonably called a fair substitute.

Revolutionary Step

We can assert, then, that the founding of the Medford High School in 1835, and of similar schools in the year thereabout, was the first really revolutionary step in American education.

The Latin Grammar school, the writing school and the liberal arts college were transplantations, very old roots set in new ground. The same is true of the endowed academy or fitting school. But the high school was as distinctly American as the very idea of universal free elementary education without the patronage of any religious sect.

The high school became the college of the great majority of the American people, and its growth in numbers, in the scope of its curriculum, in its amazing specializations and extensions, is perhaps the most extraordinary phenomenon in the entire history of education.

Today we hear of parts of the country unable to support public high schools except by tuition charges. Such a proposal is utterly tragic.

I do not advocate the federal government's taking over the support and direction of these schools.

I do hope that our American communities will make every sacrifice before they make it impossible for even a few of our children to go to a free public high school—America's greatest contribution to education.

U. S. TO CHECK ON RESOURCES OF CITIES

By Associated Press

Washington, May 20—There were indications today that federal investigators will check up on the resources of cities which say they are too poor to contribute anything toward the cost of work relief projects.

The threat of such investigation, it was said reliably, is counted upon to discourage communities from taking false "pauper's oaths."

100 P. C. GRANTS

Leaders of President Roosevelt's $4,000,000,000 works program have announced that 100 per cent grants will be made to cities which have no funds available and have exhausted their borrowing power.

Some officials expressed fear a few days ago that this policy would bring a rush of applications describing dire local conditions.

The latest word is that Harry L. Hopkins, the works progress administrator, plans to handle this problem in a manner similar to that employed in the past in dealing with state governments. He has had studies made of wealth, public indebtedness and tax rates in the states. This information has been used in working out amount which the states have been called upon to contribute.

U. S. IN CHARGE

Hopkins has disclosed that local officials will not be allowed to administer work relief money in cities which do not bear a share of the cost. Federal employes will be in charge.

A thousand million dollars' worth of projects approved by the Works Allotment Board still waited today upon formal approval by President Roosevelt and determination of the wage rates to be paid relief workers.

Officials said so-called "security" wage scales were submitted to the President by Hopkins for study over the week-end. Previously, reports that Hopkins had considered raising 30 per cent less than wages prevailing in private industry aroused a storm in Congress. Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) threatened to make a speech denouncing such a schedule.

It was said that Mr. Roosevelt might announce approval of the initial batch of projects, and a decision on the wage rates, at one time.

$108,700 DAIRY CHIEF'S PAY

By Associated Press

Washington, May 20—The National Dairy Products Corporation reported today to the securities commission that it paid salary and other payments of $108,700 in 1134 to Thomas H. McInnerney, Greenwich, Conn., as president.

200 Flee Hotel Blaze

Two hundred guests, many of them lightly clad, fled from adjoining Back Bay hotels today when fire in the boiler room of one building sent clouds of smoke rolling through the two structures.

The blaze started in the boiler room of the Enemore Hotel, according to fire authorities.

Huge billows of smoke shot out of the hotel and rushed up the street and through the open windows of the Hotel Gralyn.

Many of the guests were terrified by the smoke and rushed from the building fearing that the hotel was swept by a blaze.

A Perfect Lady

Her Smile Riddle Still

By Associated Press

Yellow Springs, O., May 20—An identification of the model for the famous Leonardo Da Vinci painting, "Mona Lisa," was announced today by Dr. Raymond S. Stites of Antioch College, who said he believes it solves a riddle which for centuries has puzzled historians of art.

Isabella D'Este, famed lady of the Renaissance, osed for the portrait, reported Dr. Stites, who is professor of aesthetics at Antioch. The finding followed years of research in the libraries and art galleries of Europe, he said.

"Now one begins to understand why the 'Mona Lisa' has always been so popular. It is the portrait of one of the noblest and most perfect women of the Renaissance," Dr. Stites added.

Marion Davies Honored On Picture's Completion

By Universal Service

Hollywood, May 20—Unique in the annals of Hollywood studios was a pretty little ceremony that took place Saturday on stage 1 at Warner Brothers, following the photographing of the last scene of "Page Miss Glory," a Cosmopolitan comedy starring Marion Davies.

After Miss Davies had retired to her dressing room from its hiding place was brought forth a beautiful silver plaque on which were engraved the names of all those—players, technicians and director—who had worked with her in the making of the picture.

Half-toned upon the plate, also, were two portraits of the star, one in the costume of a chambermaid, as she appears early in "Page Miss Glory," and the other in the gorgeous "Dawn Glory" gown of a beauty contest winner, as she appears later. Then there was this verse:

TO MARION

We weep, for the last scene is taken,
Now belongs to the ages.
Working with you was delightful,
We only regret that it's past.
We love you and wish you all the best.

On the pretense that a retake of the last scene was necessary, Mervyn Leroy, the director, led Miss Davies from her dressing room to a darkened stage. Then a spotlight was flashed upon the plaque, and Leroy said a few words of presentation while an orchestra played "Auld Lang Syne." The whole thing was a complete surprise to Miss Davies, and she was almost overwhelmed with emotion as she made a pretty, though brief, response.

Among the names engraved on the silver plaque were those of Director Leroy, Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Frank McHugh, Lyle Talbot, Mary Astor, Patsy Kelly, Berton Churchill, Lionel Stander, Hobart Cavanaugh, Barton MacLane, Allen Jenkins, Joe Cawthorne, Al Shean, Helen Lowell and Mary Treen, as well as the names of the technicians.

But gift-giving, at the end of "Page Miss Glory," was not one-sided. Everyone connected in any way with the making of the comedy received a handsome present from Miss Davies.

TINY'S $24,020 IS HELD UP

Salem, May 20—Tynne Niemi, flaxen-haired Finnish maid, who charged Leslie P. Buswell of Gloucester "railroaded" her to an insane asylum, must wait a while longer for her $24,020 damages.

Motion for a new trial was filed today in superior court by Attorney William Fisher, counsel for Buswell.

Judge Frederic R. Greenhalge took the motion under advisement.

A $14,500 verdict awarded to Miss Niemi in the first trial of her $50,000 suit was set aside as excessive by Judge Louis A. Goldberg. On retrial the jury returned the larger verdict.

In her suit she claimed she was sent to the asylum in order to break up her romance with Arthur Naegle, New York pianist.

The second trial was on the amount of damages only, as the liability had been previously established.

CENTRAL LABOR Union to Meet

RICHBERG ASKS 2 MORE YEARS OF NRA

By Associated Press

Washington, May 20—Complete "disintegration and deterioration of the whole industrial recovery program," if the Senate's ten months' NRA extension resolution becomes law, was forecast by Donald R. Richberg today before the House ways and means committee.

"To extend the act only nine and one-half months under the pressure of those opposing the NRA," the chief of the recovery agency testified, "actually invites continuing opposition, noncompliance and litigation for the purpose of persuading the Congress to let the act die in the next session."

"The provisions of the resolution are unworkable and inadequate to accomplish its desired intention," Richberg asserted.

Ways and means committee Democrats already have indicated they favor the two-year extension requested by President Roosevelt. On that point, Richberg told the committee:

"An extension of two years is absolutely necessary to maintain adequate personnel; work out problems of code administration; strengthen enforcement . . . and to prevent the entire breakdown of labor and fair trade practice provisions by chiselers who already are at work undermining the standards of fair competition."

Richberg agreed there might be honest opposition to the NRA, but contended "there must be something less than candor, something less than forthright antagonism" in attempts to clip the Blue Eagle's wings.

Richberg described as "vague" the Senate resolution's ban on price fixing. Presumably, he said, that was intended to prevent price fixing in restraint of trade. That already is forbidden by existing law, he argued.

Referring to the 30 days which the Senate resolution would allow for code revision, Richberg said "the job just couldn't possibly be done in 30 days."

Senator Borah Quizzed On His NRA Stand

By Associated Press

Washington, May 20 — Ward Cheney, chairman of the industry and business committee for NRA extension, asked Senator Borah (R.), Idaho, today, to name the small businesses which, Borah said, had protested that NRA was killing them.

He also invited Borah to attend a scheduled rally here of businessmen favoring NRA extension Wednesday and "to hear statements from small businessmen who have been protected by code."

BELMONT BODY CLUE SOUGHT

Police dug and scratched the terrain near "Lovers' Lane" in Belmont today while the remains of a body found there last night lay in a local undertaking establishment awaiting indentification.

The body, believed to be that of a man, "undoubtedly murdered" according to Medical Examiner Donald Currier, was too far decomposed to be readily identified or for the cause of death to be immediately established.

Teeth, of which the lower set was missing, were relied on by police as the one link which might bring identification. The upper set includes a false plate of six.

The spot where the bones were uncovered is in a piece of land near an isolated road long favored by night time parkers, now a part of the property of the Metropolitan State Hospital.

Hope that further clues in the form of rings, keys or buttons might be found led the police to start a thorough search of the spot.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of pills, mineral mixed, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly cheer up and laugh and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels a mere movement doesn't get to the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a tight, bad taste and your breath is foul. Your skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get them two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, gentle, purely vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Insist that you get Carter's Little Liver Pills or the red label. Regret a penny. Only 25¢ at all druggists.

FORE RIVER SET ON STRIKE POLL

Workers at the Fore River shipyards in Quincy tonight will meet to consider joining a nation-wide strike of shipbuilders.

The general walkout, if called, will tie up more than $150,000,000 of naval construction and additional millions in private contracts.

Ten locals of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America have been asked to prepare for a strike vote, following a walkout of employes of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation at Camden, N. J.

The Industrial Union claims a majority of the Fore River workers are members. The yard employs 4600 men, of whom 3600 are eligible to join the union.

There never has been a strike at the plant.

Union leaders today indicated that Quincy workers might strike to enforce demands similar to those in Camden.

'JUNGLE GOLD'

By Rex Beach

Marchand ceased his restless movements and stared at Steve out of lack-luster eyes. "Steve! Suppose my entire fortune and the future of the Company depended on getting out, say, a quarter of a million stems of bananas in a hurry. Could it be done? Could—you do it?"

"Certainly not. I haven't anything like that much fruit on my farm—Oh! Now I get you," Ste e pondered. "Most anything is possible. But why pick on me?"

"You'll understand when I tell you the fix I'm in. I need your advice, your help. How'd you like to go partners with me?"

"Under the circumstances, I'd rather join you in a case of diphtheria," Pentecost confessed. "But I've laid up some money and you're welcome to it."

"How much?"

"I don't know. It's all in Hannah's name. I never bother about such things. But say! Garcia won't let you fail; you've done too much for the country; your Company means too much——"

"Don Manuel hasn't got five thousand cash to his name; never will have. He isn't that kind of a President, God bless him!

Steve raised his shoulders.

"Why not? I wouldn't enjoy it but we've been in some tight spots together and you always stuck. Go ahead! Shoot the works, I've got a good job and it's permanent."

For the first time Marchand smiled.

"That's fine! You encourage me. Well, I'm not going to use a dollar of your money. I'm going to use you, provided I can sell you an idea. You say you got a good job."

"Swell! Minister of War. The President's pet. Nothing to do but wear nice uniforms. You know perfectly well that I hate it. I've done my job. I'm all through."

"Exactly! Through until the next war—and there won't be another. Washed up, at your age! . . . The political job is finished, why not tackle a bigger one? Fruit!"

Array of Trouble

Marchand had proved to be something of a financial wizard but he confessed that his wizardry had been costly—so costly that nothing less than a genuine heaven-sent miracle would save him, a miracle in the shape of half a million dollars.

He explained how desperately involved he was—these details were a little too complicated for Steve to follow but he nodded; how he had mounted on this crop to meet his banking obligations.

His paper was falling due and the holders were pressing him; there was no sentiment among bankers and un the could somehow make a quick turn, the Marchand Fruit Company would go on the rocks, would fall into the laps of the Tibtier crowd.

In an effort to cripple him, his rivals had even sent Mattern into the Chamelecon and up the Motagua to foment trouble among the peons.

Mattern had bid up the price for fruit, he had spread discontent, with the result that Charlie Wetzel, a Marchand overseer at Tamiera, had been killed. Wetzel was one of the company's best men.

The only fruit ready for cutting was in that district, just across the Guatemalan line, but Wetzel's death left the responsibility for the entire plantation upon Montgomery's shoulders and his men were getting out of control.

Furthermore, the river was in flood, the trails were impassable. If Mattern was still there, disorder would presumably increase. Montgomery himself might be killed.

"I bawled out Fred Tiblier for keeping that man on his payroll," Marchand cried excitedly. "I never dreamed he'd play such a trick on me. Steve, I've got to have fruit! Quick! Three weeks from now bananas will bring $4.00 a bunch in New Orleans.

"Yonder are two of my ships at anchor, eating their heads off. One cargo would enable me to satisfy the banks. I'd manage to get by. Anyhow it would give me time—.

"But hell! The fruit's here maturing, spoiling, and I can't get my hands on it. Tiblier is breaking his back to load a cargo or two. He'll succeed, I won't?

"I'll get the stuff out for you," Pentecost volunteered.

"I may have to take time out and kill Mattern."

"You mustn't, Steve! You're going into Guatemala."

"Sure. But I'm going in alone. If he's there, I'll get him; if he isn't, I'll settle your labor troubles and load our ships."

"By God! I—I believe you will! You're through soldiering, Steve. You're going in with me as a partner and we're going to lick Tiblier and the banana game; we're going to build up a gigantic industry. There's millions in it for all of us.

"The jungle is too much for me, but you can tame it. With you on the production end and my selling, we can work wonders.

"It's a fighting job; it means work, years of work; the hardest you ever did. Dangers, disappointments! But you're a builder and so am I; let's build something that will outlive us.

"Suits me," Steve said shortly.

"Remember, I'm giving you the worst of it," Marchand warned him. "My job will be easy compared to yours. You'll probably kill yourself.

"You don't think Hannah will object?"

"She never objects. She's too big to find fault. Now give me a pen and paper, then get me the fastest runner in Cortes."

A Furlorn Hope

Transportation from Marchand's Motagua plantations had always been a problem, hence it was necessary to cut smaller, greener stems than elsewhere, but it so happened that this remote district had escaped the ravages of the coastal storms and its crop now offered the owners their only hope of salvation.

That was a pretty forlorn hope, Reginald Montgomery told himself as he turned on his shower.

Thousands of stems ready and waiting to be cut, and the baily old Montagua a raging torrent. A pretty kettle of fish, truly!

Montgomery had spent the day exploring the trail below and had returned covered with mud to his waist. Just to round out the day, some blighter had taken a shot at him.

He cast his towel aside and drank a warm Scotch and soda, the third since his arrival home.

"Delphine! Come here."

There was a sound from the kitchen, a statuesque Barbadian stalked into the bedroom.

"Delphine," he said sternly, "You've been sending out the laundry again! I won't have my linen beaten to death on a rock. I slightly won't have it. Look! You can see the river mud."

Montgomery dressed, examined himself carefully, gave a final, fastidious upward twist to his blond mustache, after which he lounged out into the living room.

The table was set for one. He eyed it critically, re-arranged the silver, then stepped out upon the vine-covered bungalow porch to pluck some blooms for the centerpiece.

"Good evening, sir. I'm Reginald Montgomery."

"I'm General Pentecost. Don Marchand told me to look you up."

The two men shook hands.

"I'm with the Company now and I'm here to move this crop of fruit."

It struck Montgomery that his visitor might as well have said that he had come to slam the Montagua. Nevertheless, he murmured, politely:

"Quite so! You're just time to wash up. I mean—dinner in five minutes. I say, this is jolly!"

Queer bird, Steve thought. The sight of a lanky man in an outmoded but immaculate dinner coat and monocle was almost ludicrous under the circumstances.

The two drank.

"Ah, Delphine!" Montgomery turned as the woman entered the room with a tray of steaming viands. "General Pentecost, allow me to present my wife."

Delphine removed the dishes from her tray while her husband chatted unconcernedly, then drew out Steve's chair. The latter hesitated, saying:

"Mrs. Montgomery—? Has she dined?"

"Oh, bless you!" Montgomery seated himself comfortably. "I always dine alone. One can't permit undue familiarity. Delphine's a ripping cook and a good wife but of course she knows her place.

"At first I thought I could manage to get on well enough alone but—these natives can't learn to properly starch and iron a stiff shirt so I married Delphine. An excellent laundress. And a very good housekeeper."

Steve asked politely,

"Do you always dress for dinner?"

"Invariably! I have a conviction that if I begin to dine in my shirt-sleeves I'll forever divorce myself from the world I used to know. Rather amusing, eh? Hanging to civilization by a black bow tie."

Steve marvelled at this imperturbable overseer who "did for himself" with such total disregard for the conventions.

Steve has taken the hardest assignment of his adventurous career. Will he succeed in saving the business for Marchand? What will happen when he meets Matto? Follow this story in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

MRS. ROYAL ROBERTS MISS NELLIE DENNEY

Interstate pickings. In the crowd at Rockingham's club house the photographer found Mrs. Royal Roberts and Miss Nellie Denney, of Baltimore, figuring their horses from the trackman information in the Boston Evening American's Rockingham Special.

"Come on Hoops." The photographer said this was a study in expression. He was sure right—for the race track fair ones were rooting hard for Dave Wilson's Feed Box Special, as this photograph was made. Hoops got a poor start and he lost.

LOOTERS OF SIX SAFES SOUGHT BY POLICE

Burglars who broke into seven offices in the Canal building, 153-157 Canal street, and looted six safes, were being sought by police today.

This was the third raid made on the Canal building in less than a month.

The thieves escaped with a loot estimated at more than $600. They smashed the windows in five of the offices and forced open the door in two others.

Police believe the burglars hid in the building Saturday. When the offices were closed they started their foraging.

In another the safe-looters spent hours before they forced open a safe, when all they had to do was to turn the handle.

Jamaica Plain police were looking for a 14-year-old boy who allegedly forced Mrs. Rose Chavosian, proprietor of the Andrews Tailoring Shop on 7 St. Ann street, into a back room and set about to rob the store.

Mrs. Chavosian escaped through a rear door and shouted for help. Her cries frightened the youthful robber, who fled.

A thief who ransacked rooms in two Back Bay hotels was also sought here. In one room $119 and jewelry was reported missing; in another the burglar searched the room, but took nothing.

Police believe that he was the same hotel thief who looted rooms in many Boston hosteleries a year ago.

CandleBurglar in Police Home

While Patrolman Benjamin Day, night desk officer, was helping guard the people of Lexington, the candlelight burglar broke into his house today.

This burglar has committed more than 15 breaks in Waltham and Weston. Wherever he goes he leaves tallow on the rugs.

Miss Grace Nelles of Maple street, Lexington, heard an automobile going out the driveway and upon investigating found the burglar had taken the garage and auto keys from her purse and had stolen her car.

He also took a coat and vest and $2 from her father, Philip A. Nelles. He used one of candles from the Nelles' buffet.

The family called the police and Day took the message. They told him his own dog was barking and he called his house, 13 Maple street. He found it had been entered but nothing taken.

MACHINE GUN Thugs Get $7600

Detroit, Mich., May 20 (INS)—In the first major machine-gun crime here since 1927, three safe crackers today held three employes of a large bakery company at bay for two hours and 10 minutes while they looted a safe of $2600 in cash and checks and $5000 in negotiable stocks and bonds.

Two of the bandits carried machine guns and the third an automatic.

SCHWAB BACKS MELLON CLAIM

By International News Service

Washington, May 20—Benign and smiling, Charles M. Schwab, 73-year-old colossus of the steel industry, took the witness stand before the United States Board of Tax Appeals today to help his old friend, Andrew W. Mellon, in the latter's contest against a government $3,000,000 tax claim.

Names known the world over ran freely through his testimony as Schwab traced the growth of the steel industry through the first quarter of this century. They included the elder J. P. Morgan, Andrew Carnegie and other financial giants.

Specifically, the chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corp. appeared to confirm Mellon's valuation of the McClintic-Marshall Construction Co. back in 1913.

Questioned by Frank J. Hogan, chief Mellon counsel, Schwab revealed how he had organized the U. S. Steel Corp.

"I think I can say I was the father of U. S. Steel," he said.

Youth, 19, Held In 22 Breaks

Alleged to have confessed 22 house burglaries, Joseph V. Foley, 19, of Sycamore street, Cambridge, pleaded guilty in Cambridge court today to two charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

Police say he has admitted breaks in Somerville, Watertown, Arlington, Waltham, Newton and Belmont.

A Somerville boy arrested with him Saturday will be arraigned on burglary charges in juvenile court.

BABY CHEWS POISON

Mother Finds Her in Nick of Time to Save Infant's Life

Saved from death by the quick action of her mother, 28-months-old Constance Hickey of Jamaica Plain was in City Hospital today after chewing poison tablets.

Although it was not determined whether the baby actually swallowed any of the poison, her name was placed on the danger list.

Mrs. Hickey shook them from the baby's mouth and immediately summoned a doctor.

The mother told police she did not know where the tablets came from and thought it possible other children in the family had found them outdoors.

$20-a-Week Gross Freed In Mystery Deaths of 5

By Associated Press

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 20—Frederick Gross, 49, bookkeeper who was charged with murder after his wife and four children died mysteriously of poisoning, was discharged today in Brooklyn Homicide court.

The $20-a-week bookkeeper was freed by Magistrate John D. Mason on the application and request of District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan.

When the court discharged him he murmured:

"Thank you very much."

Geoghan told the court that he had been baffled by the case. He reviewed the intensive search for clues and the thorough chemical analysis of foods in the Gross home and poisons in the bodies of the family.

"I can't say honestly and fairly that the circumstances point to this man. We have the possibility that his wife administered the poison."

Dismissal of the charge, Geoghan told the court, does not close the case. He said he would continue to investigate.

Probe Oil Fire

The state fire marshal's office was investigating today the explosion of a 55-gallon oil drum at a shoe repair shop on 845 Western avenue, Lynn, which caused a $5000 blaze and drove scores of people into the street.

RITES FOR FOUR AUTO VICTIMS

Southbridge, May 20—Churches here were thronged today for the funerals of three of four victims of a crash between a truck and a sedan on the Sandersdale road Saturday.

Services for Mrs. Yvonne Murphy, 35, mother of four, were held from Morrille funeral parlor, with high requiem mass in St. Mary's Church. She was the wife of Police Officer Arthur Murphy, who discovered her body when sent to investigate the crash.

Funeral services for Armand Larochelle, 25, were held from his parents' home, followed by requiem mass at Notre Dame Church.

The funeral of Hormidas Hebert, 31, believed to have been driver of the death car, will be held tomorrow morning at Notre Dame Church.

Spencer-Lang Wedding Draws Many Fashionables

By BETTY ALDEN

A VERY ATTRACTIVE and extremely aristocratic assemblage of friends of the Malcolm Lang family and of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Spencer, filled the First Parish Church in Brookline on Saturday at high noon to witness the ceremony at which Donald Spencer conferred his name upon Margaret Lang . . .

It was an all white wedding of unusual effectiveness . . . White lilacs, snapdragons and apple blossoms filled the church with their fragrance and beauty, and preceding the stately bride down the aisle, her six attendants in frothy white net dresses with their arms full of apple blossoms, made a bridal party of breath-taking loveliness . . . Instead of hats the attendants wore white net hoods, which, unlike the famous gathered headgear of Little Red Riding Hood, showed most of their hair and gave the effect of soft white clouds floating around the head.

Caroline Hunnewell

A pew near the front of the church was reserved for Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Ranney and their family, of Highways, Wellesley . . . Mrs. Ranney, who is Mrs. Lang's sister-in-law, wore a voguish ensemble of dark blue with red accessories . . .

* * *

Wellesley Group

ANOTHER WELLESLEY FAMILY were the Walter Hunnewells with their daughter, Caroline . . . the latter looking very sweet in dark blue with a scarlet hat . . . a little gray feather toque completed Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman's smart black outfit . . . She and Mr. Lyman often caught the eye of their son, Ronald, Jr., as he hurried up and down the aisle ushering guests to the proper pews . . .

Rosamond Musgrave, a very talented and pretty young representative of the bride's social circle, chose a figured silk which ran the gamut of reds, greens and white . . .

Mrs. William Pinkerton and Mrs. Gorham Brooks were two very distinguished matrons who enjoyed the wedding festivities . . .

Another well dressed contemporary of the bride was Eleanor Allen, whose old rose suit contrasted with the soft gray dress and hat worn by her mother, Mrs. Thomas Allen . . . Mrs. Allen is Mrs. Lang's sister . . .

Mrs. Channing Frothingham, Mrs. Ralph Bradley and Faith Barney were others noted in the throng of wedding guests bidding farewell to Margaret who, with her bridegroom, will be living in Hartford, Ct., after their wedding journey . . .

Rebecca Ames Returning From Abroad

MR. AND MRS JOHN S. AMES are expected to return from their European travels soon . . . Miss Rebecca Ames, their debutante daughter, is returning with them, from her school in Switzerland, so she will be able to attend the late spring festivities planned for her sister debutantes . . .

* * *

Mary Louise Peck came over from Gotham to attend the Spring Dance at the Milton Club Saturday night . . . She was the guest of honor at the dinner given by the Mortimer Seabury's and their sons, Mortimer A. Seabury, Jr., and George Seabury . . .

Last winter's debs got their heads together and planned this dance just for fun and as a final large get-together of their crowd before the summer scatters them from Newport to Peterboro . . . Hope Blanchard, Jessie Fay and Lottie Denny were close seconds to Mary Louise, for the stag line's favors. . . .

Following the lead of the local business men and politicians, society will do its bit for the cotton industry by sponsoring a fashion show of summer frocks fashioned from cotton, at the luncheon hour at the Copley-Plaza on Thursday, May 23 . . .

Lucy Rantoul and Connie Turner, those inseparable society favorites, will be included among the models . . . Also Mary Frost, Mrs. Edward Pinkerton, Mrs. Alfred Kidder, 2d, Mrs. Hamilton Osgood, 2d, Dorothy Forbes and Leslie Blake . . . Leslie and her handsome Lowell Dillingham have had to postpone their wedding date from June to the fall . . . We can sympathize with any girl trying to plan the details of a wedding with the American continent and half the Pacific Ocean separating her from her fiance . . .

Concert in Kendall Green

NO MORE FITTING PLACE than lovely Kendall Green could have been chosen for the outdoor symphony concert which will be held on the afternoon of Sunday, June 2, at 4 o'clock, at the Cambridge School . . .

Mrs. A. Sprague Coolidge is leading a committee of parents and friends of the school in making arrangements for this program, being given to swell the scholarship fund for promising students.

The natural amphitheater in the pine grove adjoining the school will echo with the strains of classical music played by Elnar Hansen and a score of assisting artists from the Boston Symphony Orchestra . . . in case of inclement weather the Weston Town Hall will be the scene of the concert . . .

A Sunday night supper will be served following the musical program at which the hundreds who attend will enjoy a social hour or two . . .

(Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer)

Belmont Girl Engaged

CANAAN, N. H., will claim Miss Dorothea Holland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Holland of Belmont, whose engagement to Dr. John Richard Elliott has been announced.

Dr. Elliott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Elliott, of Southington, Conn. He is a graduate of Holy Cross College and Boston University Medical School.

Cecelian Guild goes south for its annual spring luncheon and has selected the Lobster Claw, at Cohasset, on June 4, as the place to hold it. Mrs. John Walsh of Cambridge is the chairman of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. John J. Donohue, president of the Guild.

* * *

With summer just around the corner, many of the young group are taking an active part in plans for a concert, in aid of St. John's Church at Pocasset, on Cape Cod, to be held at the University Club this evening.

Artists will be Miss Mary Galvin Breau, soprano; Gladys Carew, mezzo-soprano; John Shaugnessey, tenor, and John Herrick, baritone. Miss Madeleine Carew will assist as piano accompanist and Marietta Canan and Heinrich Gebhard will be heard in a concerto for two pianos.

Ushers are Alice Fitzgerald of Wellesley; Ruth James and Helen Lyons of Brookline and Rita Maloney of Newton.

Hollywood, May 20 (INS)—Albert Jolson, Jr., eight-week-old adopted son of Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler, today was reported slightly improved following a blood transfusion made to strengthen the baby because of illness induced by an ear infection.

Congregationalists Meet

Nashua, N. H., May 20 (AP)—The 134th annual meeting of the New Hampshire Congregational Christian Church opened here today with 250 delegates, representing 200 churches, in attendance.

Society Notes

In the Boston group are Mr. and Mrs. Pliny Jewell of "Stone Mill," in Medford, Dr. James J. Minot of Marlborough street, Mr. Richard Floyd of Clark road, Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Paine of Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, Mr. Orin J. Wood of Warren street, Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Dean of Marlborough street, and Mrs. William A. Barron, Jr., of Oxbow road in Weston.

* * *

MR. COURTENAY GUILD and Miss Ada Dewson will talk informally of the varied activities at the Hospital Cottages for Children in Baldwinsville, over Station WMEX on Thursday at 3 p. m., and two young patients from the hospital will sing a duet. Miss Dewson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Dewson of Milton, is a member of the women's board of the hospital cottages.

* * *

MRS. HOLDEN McGINLEY of Milton, and Miss Grace Armstrong are making a short visit to New York and are staying at the Ambassador Hotel. They are awaiting the arrival of Mrs. McGinley's daughter, Miss Gertrude McGinley, who is returning from Europe on the Majestic.

Tea at Hospital Aid Given Children Shown

INVITATIONS to a tea tomorrow afternoon and to inspect the hospital have been sent out by the managers of the House of the Good Samaritan.

They went to members of more than 65 church parishes in Greater Boston, which contribute garments and toys for the young patients each year.

At 3 o'clock, under the guidance of Miss Louise N. Coleman, superintendent, and Mrs. Sarah L. Still, assistant superintendent, guests will be shown through the wards where the 85 beds are filled by children suffering from rheumatic heart disease, and through the Jackson Research Wing where intensive investigation into the causes and cure of rheumatic infection, is being carried on.

Mrs. Alexander Galt Grant is in charge of the arrangements, and is being assisted by Mrs. Edwin O. Baker of Milton, and Mrs. Clarke Withers of Dover. Other members of the board of managers will be present to greet the guests.

Books on Parade

By MILES ALDEN

He wrote history as it is portrayed in the daily press. But he wrote to order.

At the end of 20 years Patrick decided he would write a story for himself—and for others if a publisher so decided. The publisher did.

A woman news writer decides he is innocent and sets out to prove it. The various ramifications of the plot will keep even the veteran mystery story reader interested.

But more than that the book is crammed with witty anecdotes and racey gossip of the national capital.

LONG NIGHT—By Thomas Bailey—Godwin, publishers.

Summer once again brings its quota of hammock reading.

Separated from her party in the far north, she is found by an Eskimo hunter and taken to an Igloo village.

Among the Eskimos Joyce discovers a young white man, sole survivor of a lost Viking colony, primitive in his life and love as the natives with whom he dwells.

How love blooms between this oddly-assorted couple, and how it survives their return to civilization provides a plot which taxes neither author nor reader.

SMART SHOPS overflowing with colorful Spring fashions! Budding life in the Parks! Fascinating features at the theatres! The whole atmosphere redolent of the new season! An ideal time to make that long-deferred visit to New York! And the ideal place to make your headquarters is The LOMBARDY. True setting of vivacious social activity, where fine living is a fine art. Cuisine, service and appointments are the epitome of quality.

HOLLAND

WHEN A New Trio Was Formed

By GEORGE HOLLAND

"Meet me tonight in dreamland Sweet, dreamy dream land."

And so, ladies and gemmun, a new artist was born. He urged me not to use his name, but his initials happen to be Pinky Kandell, and the day is not far distant, when, in spite of his comparative youth, he will be known the length and breadth of Belmont as one of the leading second tenors.

George Holland

His reputation has spread already throughout the length and breadth of Kirby's Arch Inn, for there, last night, his promising career was born.

• • •

The illustrious Pinky is the company of Fred Binder, the funny man at the Old Howard, and Conny Ryan, the best singer in burlesque. Well, when Mister Ryan barged forth with a tenor wail, Mr. Kandell's second tenor impulses got the ascendancy and when Fred Binder popped down in front with a bass so low that it positively crawled, the trio was complete.

So was a neglected part of your correspondent's education. To him, Fred Binder has been a burlesque comedian, and a good one. But not a musician. He was a fellow (Mr. Binder) with baggy pants, comical hat, red nose and an inflated bladder ready to be exploded against a straight man's visage.

Then, Mr. Binder disclosed himself as a keen student of harmony. That dialect is a fake. The red nose is a device. The slapstick is the money-making fraud of a real musician who compares favorably with say, Joe Rines.

These burlesque folks, down the line, have oodles of talent. When vaudeville died, the burlesque enjoyed a renaissance. Until a half dozen years ago, burlesque was a form of entertainment which attracted morons.

But vaudeville faded, and competent singers, dancers and comedians worked in night clubs or burlesque. Many of them chose burlesque, where they are guaranteed 35 or 40 weeks of work a year.

Fred Binder, an old trouper, Connie Ryan, a new Havan boy with a lyric tenor that would do credit to the best night clubs in the land, played in musical comedies, but they folded up at an alarming rate of speed, and now he confines his singing to burlesque stages, making excursions into night clubs during the off season.

Brother Kandell, of course, was the distinct upset, as a matter of fact, a 30 to 1 shot breezing down the stretch in front. He's the horse owner who won five consecutive races in New York before shipping to Rockingham, which is certainly some sort of a record for consistency.

• • •

But when he yodelled a mean, wicked, nasty second tenor, then all the exploits of his hosses were forgotten; all the worries about today, when Crowded Hours goes to the post in the fifth race, were forgotten.

Kandell is an Horatio Alger story in his own right. He's the Baltimore boy who parlayed an important five dollar bill into a stable of race horses. Call it luck; call it anything you wish; but it's still an Horatio Alger story.

And the remarkable part of it, to Kandell, is that his home town papers, with one limping exception, forgot to chronicle the fact that overnight, he became one of the leading money-winners on the race tracks of the East.

• • •

It took the Boston papers (and Austen Lake especially) to acquaint the world in general, Baltimore in particular, that Baltimore had produced one of the most amazing phenomena of a screwy decade—a young man who leaped from nowhere to a place in the sun, and at the same time, kept his feet on the ground.

At Modern

The new program at the Modern Theater offers for the first time in Boston the melodrama, "Great God Gold," which has Sidney Blackmer and Martha Sleeper in the leading roles. The picture sets forth the diabolical schemes of "bucket shop" operators and other stock swindlers.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, May 20—Get in readiness to welcome a new movie leading man. Winfield Sheehan is building Henry Fonda, Margaret Sullavan's ex and a good actor, into a coming Fox star.

Louella O. Parsons

Then he was promptly made little Gaynor's leading man in "Way Down East" and now comes the word that Fonda, who can make up to look more like Abraham Lincoln than Lincoln himself, will be starred in "The Young Lincoln," the story of the martyred president between the ages of 23 and 30.

If you remember the silent version of "Way Down East" you will be interested to hear the Fox cast: Edward Trevor, a New York actor, plays the heavy, the same role that Lowell Sherman had in Griffith's picture; Russell Simpson plays the squire and Spring Byington his wife; Margaret Hamilton and Sarah Padden the two gossips.

• • •

Phil Goldstone, a one-time independent producer, is about to break out with his most ambitious production. He will produce "Mutiny of the Dead," for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It is based on the incident which plunged Turkey into war with England. You can see from this it's a spectacular number with submarines and all the excitement of naval warfare.

Robert Montgomery who goes East for a holiday, will be starred as a sea captain and John Balderston who is adapting the story from Otis Garrett's original, is putting in plenty of drama for Monsieur Montgomery.

• • •

Not in days has anything made me as happy as the word that Marie Prevost will play the lead in a Warner Brothers short, "Keystone Hotel," with a cast of the old Keystone actors. Marie put on so much weight some months ago that it was impossible for her to face the camera. She would exercise feebly but not sufficiently to take off all the poundage that kept her from being attractive on the screen. Ralph Staub has done a grand job in lining up Ben Turpin, Chester Conklin, Ford Sterling, Hank Mann and Eddie Gribbon, all former Keystone comics, for his short.

• • •

Our popular Hollywood premiera are one of the legends of this town. Warner Brothers, who hold a convention here the first week in June, are going to let their representatives, salesmen, etc., see a movie first-night with all the trimmings on June 7.

"Oil for the Lamps of China," a Cosmopolitan picture directed by Mervyn Leroy, and starring such favorites as Pat O'Brien, Josephine Hutchinson and Lyle Talbot, is the film attraction chosen and it's a world premiere.

Chatter in Hollywood: Sam Briskin just received word from Ruth Chatterton that when she reaches here it will be as the pilot of her new plane. Ruth has quietly gone about learning to fly until now she is a real pilot and before she returns to Hollywood she will go to Detroit to pick up the new plane waiting for her there.

• • •

Snapshots of Hollywood

GRACIE ALLEN and GEORGE BURNS grabbing a holiday in China the moment they finish their picture and radio engagements; SULKA VIRTUEL introducing MRS. MAX REINHARDT to Hollywood musical circles at a soiree given in honor of OTTO KLEMPERER; EDDIE DUCHIN, orchestra favorite, due in June; reports current he and MARJORIE OELRICHS will then announce their much rumored marriage; a post card from JANET SNOWDEN and WILLIAM GILL who are honeymooning in South America; they come here in a few months.

BEN ALEXANDER is PAULA STONE'S latest admirer; is that gal popular? RUDOLPH KISS, Hungarian artist, giving an exhibition of paintings at his studio; portraits of CLAUDETTE COLBERT, REBEN MAMOULIAN, CECIL de MILLE, and RUPERT HUGHES in the collection; LOUISE HENRY and her mother traveling with FRAZIER JELKE, New York banker; LYDA ROBERTI out of the hospital after lunching at a cafe escorted by her nurse.

SALLY EILERS and HARRY JOE BROWN to go to Europe on their summer holiday; meanwhile they are getting the old LEW CODY house ready for their future home. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Soloist at Pops

Louise Bernhardt, talented young concert and opera contralto of Melrose, will appear as guest soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at "May in Paris," the Pops concert to be given Tuesday evening in Symphony Hall.

Louise Bernhardt

Miss Bernhardt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Bernhardt. She began her career with the American Opera Company and later sang with the Chicago Civic Opera Company and the San Carlo Opera.

Benefit

The big benefit show to be given by the American Federation of Actors has been postponed until next Sunday evening, May 26, and will be presented at the Boston Opera House.

Sophie Tucker heads the list of celebrities who will come on from Broadway for the bi. event, which promises to be one of the outstanding events of this theatrical season in Boston.

Seats purchased for the performance originally scheduled for yesterday at the Colonial may be exchanged for next Sunday evening.

At the Gayety

"The Good Fairy," based on Molnar's famous play, is one of the screen attractions on the new bill at the Gayety, Margaret Sullavan, Herbert Marshall and Ralph Morgan have the leading roles. The companion picture on the program is George M. Cohan in "Gambling," which features Wynne Gibson and Dorothy Burgess. Five acts of vaudeville complete the show.

On Wednesday night there will be another in the series of amateur radio auditions with cash prizes to the winner.

Bowdoin's Bill

Seein' Stars

By Feg Murray

New Star Comes to Town

Evelyn Myers

Miss Myers, one of the most glamorous girls in burlesque, has just closed a record run at the Republic Theater and the Paradise Cafe in New York. Her songs and dances, including the famous Myers strut, are a new and interesting departure from the routine burlesque numbers, and "Take a Chance" is elaborately devised to introduce its famous star appropriately.

Other favorites among the girls headlining the new revue are the petite Chiquita Garcia, Evelyn Brooks, Aileen Dale and Rose Heatherly.

The Binder-Sacks combination means sure-fire laughs, and Boston fans are bringing a warm welcome to their reunion as a comic duo.

The fascinating and fast-stepping Carroll Sisters are the lovely feminine stars of the new show, which has Conny Ryan, a lad who has an excellent voice, as an added feature.

Other stars in the company of 50 include Cynthia Michele, Kitty Norris, Billy Lamonte and Alice Kennedy.

Vaudeville Groups Aided

Tonight at 8 the V. A. A. night at the leading motion picture and vaudeville theaters throughout the country.

Ten per cent of today's receipts from every theater in Boston, as well as all over the United States, will be contributed to the National Vaudeville Artists' Fund, which provides hospitalization and care for the needy of the theatrical profession.

No collection will be taken up at any of the theaters, but the public is urged to attend today's performances at theaters displaying the N. V. A. poster in their lobbies.

This plan for raising funds for the benefit of the acting profession was suggested by Eddie Cantor, beloved comedian of screen, stage and radio.

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Investigate Before Marrying A Complete Stranger

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm engaged to a young man, I'm wearing his ring, and we expect to be married some time this summer.

It seems strange to me and my mother that I have never had a line from any of his family, or ever heard him speak of them. I've asked him about himself, and he has answered vaguely that he was born in the Middle West and that he has been away from there a long time.

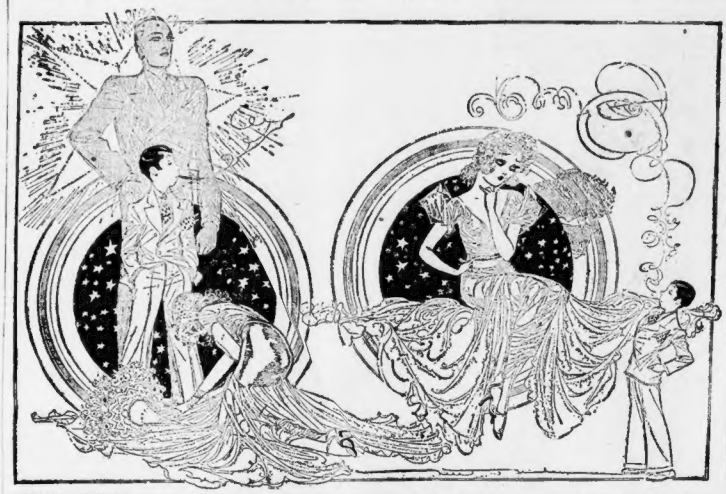
I remember reading an article of yours once, in which you told girls to beware of "Lohengrins"—young men who appeared on the scene and could give no account of their families or backgrounds. This has started me to WONDERING.

As you're engaged to this young man and wearing his ring, he should certainly be entirely frank with you about his family and his background. Even granting that he is a foundling and knows nothing of his origin, that should not deter him from confiding in you if he expects you to be his wife. Tell him that it seems strange that no member of his family has written and see if he will not tell you something of himself.

In your place I should hesitate to marry a man about whom nothing is known.

"To See Ourselves as Others See Us"

By Nell Brinkley



ROBERT BURNS expressed a desire common to most of us when he said, "Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us, to see ourselves as ithers see us."

But perhaps it is just as well if we don't. For instance, the boy of fifteen in Miss Brinkley's amusing picture considers himself the dashing, tall and romantic young man on the left hand corner of the picture, before whom his charming young sweetheart kneels in adoration.

In reality, she views him rather ruefully as a funny, cheeky little snub-nosed boy, hardly worth her consideration, and much too young to be smoking a cigarette.

If we did not have these dreams and delusions, life would not be worth the living. BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

New Waterproof Makeup Boon for Beach Beauties

By THE BEAUTY EDITOR

A BRAND-NEW waterproof method for making the face, arms and shoulders smooth and lovely on the beach, is making its debut in Boston today.

Not only does this extraordinary foundation cream make your skin lovely to behold and velvet to touch, but it completely covers freckles and blemishes. It is of such misty-fine texture that it gives the skin an illusion of silken transparency.

You can splash about in a boiling surf for hours and emerge on the beach with the same self-confidence of having spent half the morning before your dressing table making-up.

Have you ever experienced the sickening sight of a tiny pimple or an ugly acid spot just when you wanted to appear your best? If you have, you will thank me for telling you of this new preparation. It has a definite message of hope for those who occasionally suffer from blemishes. Varicose veins, birthmarks, freckles or embarrassing moles and liver spots are immediately blotted out.

Of course, certain questions will pop into your mind right away. What happens in hot weather? Doesn't this cream clog the pores? Won't it really come off in water?

For answer to the first, all you have to do is to powder more often when the mercury starts climbing. But it positively will not melt or run. As for clogging the pores—well, listen to this. The woman who sponsors this cream has been experimenting with it for sixteen years and has a fine, smooth textured skin.

And just to prove that water will not wash it away, I have seen a girl saturate a pad in water and then rub it over her face. The only thing that came of was a little rouge and powder. Butter and the cream you put in your coffee are the only things which will remove it.

To learn the name of this waterproof cream for covering all skin blemishes, call Miss Shelby, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply.

Question—Will you kindly tell me whether you think that hot baths are a good remedy for insomnia? I have been told to take a hot bath before going to bed, and that it helps to induce sleep. How long should one stay in the tub?

Mrs. Virginia Mc C., Waban.

Answer—One of the simplest and best panaceas for an attack of nerves is a hot bath. There is something very relaxing in immersion in hot water. To put a time limit upon such a bath is impossible, because it all depends upon the original vitality of the individual. One whose strength was much lessened could not stay in the water for more then ten minutes, while for another twenty minutes is not too long. The way one feels on getting out is the best criterion, for there should be a gently sensation of lassitude, but not that of exhaustion. A glass of hot milk before retiring sometimes brings on sleep.

Question—If I applied peroxide to the superfluous growth of hair on my upper lip would it do any harm? I am only 17, and this growth is very noticeable. How often should peroxide be applied?

M. W., Milford.

Answer—A light growth of "down" is natural on all skin. And if that is all you have on your upper lip, by all means leave it alone. However, if it is a heavy, dark growth and causes you embarrassment, you can bleach it. A home-made bleach for such hair is peroxide, plain or diluted with water. Another and stronger bleach is made by mixing one-half tablespoonful of ammonia with two tablespoonfuls of peroxide of hydrogen. The ammonia dries out the oil in the unwanted hair, and makes it easier for the peroxide to bleach it. You can use this bleach several times a week. If you find that the skin is sensitive after a treatment apply a soothing cream.

Use Caution In Defense Overcalling

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

I cannot be too emphatic when I recommend caution in all defensive overcalling.

When vulnerable particularly, it will be found that all good players are careful almost to the point of cowardice.

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass (1)	2 ♡ (2)	Pass (3)
Pass (4)	2 ♠ (5)	Pass	4 ♠ (6)
Pass	Pass

(1) Too weak for a vulnerable overcall, by a slight margin; the reason is that West's trump suit is not solid enough to protect against a bad break.

If, for example, East's hand were held by North, a one-spade overcall could be set two or three tricks, doub' d.

(2) It is better to raise than to bid no-trump, even with a balanced hand, when holding more than the minimum strength required for either response.

(3) East cannot risk any bid with both opponents bidding and his partner passing.

(4) South had just his opening bid, and nothing more. The suit being satisfactory, a pass is natural.

(5) Now West, seeing that not a great deal of strength is held against him, hopes that his partner can offer enough support to allow two spades to be made; or at least to prevent North and South from making a part-score, at the cost of a one-trick set.

(6) Although cognizant of the fact that West's hand is not very strong, as long as West has enough strength to make any bid at all East wants to take a chance on making game.

North, having op ned the heart King, shifted to spades to prevent too much ruff ng in dummy.

West could see that he needed only to rid himself of his three hearts.

Dummy's trumps being high, he did not fear overruffs, so he proceeded to cross-ruff the hand.

He won the first spade in his hand, ruffed a heart, returned to the club King and ruffed another heart.

He cashed the club Ace so that he could gain entry to his hand by ruffing a club. When again in the lead, he ruffed his last heart with dummy's last trump.

COSTUMES FOR DAY WEDDINGS

TROUBLESOME QUESTIONS ANSWERED

SPOTLIGHT on that "forgotten man"—the bridegroom!

Many of our readers ask what he should wear at a morning or afternoon wedding.

"What a high-hat bridegroom!" you exclaim. But just keep in mind that his outfit is formal because the bride's is. For a formal morning or afternoon wedding, he simply must wear that high silk hat and cutaway coat. These practically demand a wing collar, and with a wing collar the smartest tie is an Ascot. This one is striped in gray and black. But a second good choice would be a bow tie in gray and black shepherd's plaid—as shown at upper-left. The cutaway coat may be black or dark Oxford gray. The waistcoat may be white or buff (Linen is the preferred material for spring and summer.) Spats match waistcoat, in material and color. The shirt is white linen with a stiff bosom. Trousers are of dark striped material. To further carry out the conservative note, socks are black silk and Oxfords black with unornamented toe caps.

Correct accessories—as shown in separate sketches—are: An all-white, self-corded linen handkerchief; a pair of doeskin gloves—either white or buff, to match waistcoat; a single white gardenia for boutonniere. A walking stick, if used, should be straight. As for jewelry, shirt studs and cuff links may be plain gold or platinum, or set with mother-of-pearl. A pearl stick pin is used with an Ascot tie.

A New Booklet

That completes the picture! For a less formal outfit for the bridegroom, the possibilities depend on the bride's costume. You can learn all about formal and informal costumes for the bride—and all the other important points for weddings—from our booklet, HOW TO PLAN YOUR WEDDING. With this as a dependable guide, you'll be saved much trouble and possible embarrassment. You'll know just exactly the right answer to every troublesome question. Questions such as these, for example:

What Does the Bride's Family Pay For?
How is the Bride's Silver Marked?
What Wedding Music Should Be Selected?
When are Announcements Mailed?
What is the Order of the Procession?
What are the Duties of the Best Man and Ushers?

Oil FOR THE Lamps of CHINA

Hester Meets a Crisis

CHAPTER 23

It was a spring morning. When they reached the bund, out on the river in the direct line of their vision, a rusty old tramper had just dropped anchor.

"Look," said Stephen, "the first steamer! Winter is really over. The river is open!"

Hester stood transfixed, watching the human mass packed on the decks of the tramper, seething up and down, spilling over the sides of the ship. Scrambling like rats, men dropped into the flat-bottom scows beneath a multitude of abject creatures, poverty-stricken, dirty past all belief, the marks of disease upon them.

"Hurry home, where it's clean," said Stephen, kissing her.

Why should Hester know that out of the oldest province of China, where the race had been conceived thousands of years before, out of the valley of the river called "China's Sorrow," this surfeit of humanity came each spring to the rich outer country to work in the fertile fields?

And returned in the autumn to their clans to live meagerly on the hoarded pittance until the next spring? Why should Hester know anything about it?

Stephen, too, was held by the sight. Like swarms of locusts they seemed, devouring Manchuria's plenty.

He tried to imagine what life must be like for many of the Chinese—the life of men like Kin, well paid, compared to most. His wages, 12 Mexican, six American dollars a month. Twenty cents a day for Kin and his family to live on.

As the morning wore on, Stephen forgot about Kin, even about that throng, although another ship had come in and the dense mass of humanity pressed close up to the low windows, darkening the room.

There was an undertow in the office that pulled at his thoughts.

All through the winter, each time he came back, he had felt a growing excitement; talk of the foreign director who was traveling over China and would be here some time soon; talk of the pioneer days of the Company being over.

A new note. Change of spirit. Expansion. The next step forward. Many new classmen had been sent out.

As he and Jim walked toward the club at noon, his friend said, "Likely to be fireworks around here when the director comes."

"What's his plan, anyway?" asked Stephen.

"Expand the organization. Open substations with white men in charge. It's the highly developed type of organization which they use in America. But the boss contends it's only a waste of money—and it isolates the men."

Hers, she felt, for the first time. Free, finally, of something Kin had brought to it. She knew Stephen hadn't wanted him to go, but she didn't care.

Something that was rightly hers had been given back to her.

By noon from that inexhaustible supply of China's millions, she had selected a cook.

He said that he would get a house-boy for her. She felt proud of her initiative.

But after a tiffin of sodden bread and a custard made from bad eggs, and the cook's disappearance immediately afterward with the advance money for marketing, Hester had to acknowledge that she could not read Chinese character, and so could not choose her servants.

A note came from Stephen. Could she manage to entertain the director and his wife? They were coming in late that afternoon. Hester looked at the clock.

Four hours before the train was due. They'd have to have Stephen's and her room. And there was dinner to get for five of them, including the boss.

Two-Way Maillot

By ANNICE BRINK

If one has the figure, there's nothing quite as fetching as a well-constructed maillot or one-piece bathing suit. By well-constructed, we mean the one shown in the insert below—with longer legs having a straight rather than bias line, cunningly gored trunks, and a snug-fitting bodice. But if you are just not the type, the attachable scant flared skirt makes everything right! Knit in a heavy, strong rib stitch, this suit naturally acquires a good figure-controlling way. It is easy to knit; see caption below.

If you wish for knitting directions on the above suit, simply write to Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MADGE ASKS BOYS ABOUT ESCAPADE

By ADELE GARRISON

CHAPTER 349

"NO, JUNIOR," I said slowly, "I do not mean that I know why you went away this morning, without permission and without letting anyone know that you were going. I simply mean that I know why you have come here now. You have come to tell me all about it, and to 'take your medicine', as I have heard you and Roderick say. Am I right?"

The two small boys looked at each other in the half ludicrous, half pathetic embarrassment of their kind, wetting their lips with their tongues and scuffling their feet along the rug.

Then they shifted their position as with one accord and lifted suddenly resolute little faces to me.

"Yes, that's right," they said sturdily, and then waited, evidently at a loss how to begin their story.

"Suppose you begin at the beginning," I said encouragingly, and either the planned kindness of my voice or his own conscience lifted the lid from my small son's pent-up emotions, and with a howl he rushed across the space between us and flung himself into my arms, sobbing vociferously. Roderick was only a few seconds behind him, and only a little less vehement in his remorseful grief, and for the next few minutes "the waters came down at Lodora."

I soothed them in the ways that mothers know, but let them sob their consciences clear, uttering disjointed sentences the while. "We never meant—to—it just came over us — we didn't think about your worrying — please give us a smacking — we ought to have one—" All the familiar phrases of a conscience-stricken child.

Finally, when I judged that the paroxysm was nearly over, I tightened an arm about each of them into a hearty little hug and spoke slowly, clearly.

STARTING THE STORY

"I know that you are sorry, darlings," I said, "and I forgive you both, freely. Of course, you know you will have to have some punishment, for you caused a great deal of worry. And if Granzie had known you were gone, without anyone knowing where you were, it might have made her very seriously ill.

"But we'll talk about the punishment later. It won't be a whipping, and it won't be very hard, because I know you are truly sorry. So now, go and wash your faces and dry them, and then come back to me and tell me the whole story."

They obediently trotted to my stationary wash stand in the corner, washed the traces of tears from their grubby faces, and returned to me.

"Get those hassocks," I directed, "and sit down, one on either side of me." It is a favorite position of theirs when I am telling them a story, and with the volatile spirits of childhood they commented upon it laughingly.

SLEEP IN BUNGALOW

"You always tell us stories. Now we're going to turn around and tell you one," Junior said, and Roderick swaggered and added, "And how!" But they seemed to find difficulty in getting started, and finally, hopeless of their finding a starting point, I prodded them gently.

"When was it you first thought of going away?" I asked.

They looked at each other again, and this time Roderick was the spokesman.

"It was when we heard Hank and Bill talking, wasn't it, Jun?" he asked.

"Yep, that was the first," Junior agreed, and then they stopped short again.

"Do you mean?" I asked a bit sternly, "that you were listening to something you were not meant to hear?"

"We didn't go for to hear it," Junior said defensively. "You see, when we came home from that ride to the beach, we couldn't get to sleep for the longest time, and finally—well, we thought we'd go down to the bungalow and sleep on the couch there. We knew Hank and Bill would come in to sleep there, when they finally got around to come to bed, and we figured when they came in, we'd come back to our beds."

"But I guess we must have gone to sleep on that couch, and pulled the covers over us, so the boys didn't see us; for the first I knew Rod was punching me and holding his hand over my mouth at the same time, and there was a bright light shining, and Hank and Bill were talking a blue streak."

Place Silver on Table IN ORDER of Its Usage

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. How are the silver utensils placed at the sides of the plate at dinner? 2. Does one have to have cream soup spoons to use with cream soup plates? 3. Is it correct to use a bread and butter plate at a dinner that isn't strictly formal? Housekeeper.

1. On the right of the plate are the knives and spoons. Also on the right is the oyster fork, if one is to be placed. On the left of the plate are the forks. After we have decided what our menu is to be, we place the necessary silverpieces in the order in which they are to be used; that is, we say that the guest may start with the silverpiece farthest from the plate, and proceed toward the plate.

If, for instance, we are to serve oysters first, or a fish cocktail, we place first on the right the oyster fork. Next, if there is to be soup, the soup spoon.

Next, on the right, the dinner knife, if the main course is to be served next. On the left we place, farthest from the plate, the dinner fork, and nearest the plate the salad fork, if salad is to be the next course, or even if the salad is to be served with the main course.

The dessert pieces are brought in, usually, with the dessert.

2. No, these are the most convenient form and size to serve with the cream soup cups, but we may, if we prefer, use dessert spoons.

3. Yes.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know if it is so very impolite to eat crackers, butter or rolls while waiting for the rest of the dinner to be served in a hotel or restaurant?

WILMA.

No, indeed, it isn't. It is quite correct, if we wish, for us to "nibble" the crackers, or the rolls with butter, before the dinner is served. Or nuts, or celery and olives.

Martha Lee on Cooking

Making Sour Milk as You Need It

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

"Why is it so difficult to make sour milk by letting fresh milk ferment? It used to be so simple."

We might say in explanation that pasteurization has destroyed many of the bacteria which are the cause of the natural process of souring.

The milk we used to buy, which was not pasteurized and consequently not as safe as present-day high-quality milk, contained a large number of milk-souring organisms.

If you like to always keep sour milk on hand, we suggest that you get a small amount of buttermilk and add this to fresh milk. Buttermilk, as you know, is a concentrated form of milk-souring bacteria and is entirely harmless. And after this use a portion of one day's sour milk to start the next. (Just as we did in the olden days with yeast bread, starting the next day's batch with a small bit of dough from the previous day.)

Be sure to keep this milk in carefully scalded bottles to keep the culture as pure as possible. It may be necessary from time to time to purchase new buttermilk to replace the old.

DARK CHOCOLATE CAKE

1 cup sugar
2 whole eggs
4 ounces (4 squares) chocolate
2 cups cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream the shortening, add the sugar gradually, add one of the eggs and beat thoroughly, then add the other egg and continue beating until the mixture is quite light. Add the melted chocolate. Sift together the dry ingredients—flour, baking soda and salt—and add these in about three tablespoonful portions alternately with small portions of the milk. After the additions of milk, mix only slightly, but after adding dry ingredients beat about ten seconds. Add vanilla just before the last addition, which should be of flour. Bake in oven at 325 deg. F. for about one-half hour.

BRAN MUFFINS

1½ cups bran
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup molasses
1 tablespoon butter, melted
1 cup sour milk

Sift flour, soda, baking powder and salt. Add bran. Combine the molasses, sour milk and melted shortening. Add the dry ingredients and stir only until mixed. Half fill muffin tins and bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 deg. F., for 20 to 25 minutes.

Enough GASOLINE "to fill Boulder Dam"

It would take a Boulder Dam to hold the billions of gallons of gasoline that are poured into the gas tanks of the millions of automobiles owned by the families who read The American Weekly.

Twenty-one and a half million passenger cars, owned among 28,000,000 families, is proof positive that automobile owning and operating in the United States is in the hands of the great mass of the people. And from this same great mass The American Weekly secures its more than 5,500,000 circulation.

The one sure way to sell YOUR gasoline, oil—and all other accessories—is to advertise in The American Weekly where, in one single magazine, is assembled the greatest collection of motor car owners.

They are the owners of Chevrolets, Fords and Plymouths, as well as Cadillacs, Lincolns and Packards. They own the Pontiac, Dodge, Oldsmobile, Buick, Nash, Studebaker and also the Rolls-Royce. Careful surveys among automobile owners give the actual figures.

No other magazine on earth can bring you in direct contact with so many actual buyers of oil and gasoline.

For $16,000 each you can buy one or a series of color pages, double the size of any other magazine page, and tell your sales story to more than five and one-half million families located in the richest buying areas of the country, 90.3% of whom live in the 25 above-the-average states, in which 78% of all passenger cars are registered.

Advertising in The American Weekly not only sells goods to the consumer, but it gets the hearty endorsement and cooperation of the trade as well. This is the kind of advertising a dealer understands; advertising that makes sales right in his store.

Where this Magazine goes

The American Weekly is the largest magazine in the world. It is distributed through 17 great Hearst Sunday Newspapers. In 614 of America's 995 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over, The American Weekly concentrates 67% of its circulation.

In each of 158 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 146 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 139 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 171 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,982,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy and read The American Weekly.

Sonny's Loves, Money and His Pet Hate

By Jack Conway

ANY GOOD newspaperman can tell you why the public is so much interested in Gus Sonnenberg, former world champion, who battles Dan O'Mahoney in a finish bout at the Garden on Friday night.

Mr. Boston

Love! Money! Hate!

Any of these three things makes a first class story that has reader interest. Sonnenberg has all three of them.

He loved Judith Allen, movie star, when she was Marie Elliot, pretty Belmont school girl. He paid to educate her for a career in the movies. At one time he told me he had changed his entire way of living because he was very much in love with his wife.

There was a divorce.

A year later Gus married again. His second wife is very much in love with him. They went to Australia and to New Zealand on their honeymoon.

"I am happy once more," the old Dynamiter told me recently as he waited to step into action in the ring. "I have forgotten the old life and the old love. My future is still ahead of me. Mrs. Sonnenberg travels with me and does everything possible to help me succeed."

* * *

Money!

Gus was making $25 a week as an automobile salesman when Cy Mitchell, Providence wrestling promoter, gave him his first bout.

Sonnenberg had been a football star at Dartmouth and at University of Detroit. Later he had given a course in chemistry in a Detroit high school.

Sonnenberg introduced the butt and the flying tackle to wrestling. Both were illegal, but the public liked the new way of doing things. They gave the cash customers a new thrill, and so the promoters forgot about the rules.

Inside of two years the old Dynamiter was world champion. He drew $72,000 with Strangler Lewis the night he won the title at the Garden. A few weeks later he came back to draw $54,000 with Joe Malcewicz. He then drew $40,000 with Count Zarynoff.

Sonnenberg, in a period of two years, attracted $2,000,000 to the box offices of clubs where he displayed his deadly butt and spectacular flying tackle.

He changed wrestling styles. Other wrestlers adopted the flying tackle, while still others invented new holds.

GUS SONNENBERG

There was the Jim Browning turn over body scissors, Nick Lutze's double arm lock and reverse back fall, and the Dan O'Mahoney "Irish Whip."

Gus made a fortune. He reached forth for a million in the investment field. He saw a future for silver even before the New Deal sent the price of silver skyrocketing.

He secured an option on a silver mine in New Mexico at a cost of $100,000. He went in for oil investments. Then came the stock market crash, and Gus' fortune was wiped out overnight.

The old Dynamiter took his losses well. He was still young. He would earn a new fortune. He went back to wrestling with as much enthusiasm as he showed when he was battling his way to the championship. Once more he is demanding title recognition.

Hate!

Sonnenberg is only human. Hate usually starts with jealousy. Ed Don George was Sonnenberg's first great hate. George, like himself, had been a former college football hero.

Ed played football for Michigan. He had also been a wrestler while in college. He won the intercollegiate heavyweight championship, and represented the United States in the Olympic games.

Sonnenberg felt George had stolen some of his college thunder. He unwisely left a Providence hospital, where he had been ill with influenza for three weeks, to go to Los Angeles to wrestle George in a title match. George won, and the flame of hate grew inside of Sonnenberg's rugged body.

"If it is the last thing I do, I shall beat George," Gus recently told me.

Sonnenberg hates O'Mahoney, but not the way he does George. He considers Danno a crude, inexperienced youngster who has been fortunate to get to the top by defeating second class opposition.

I think Gus is also jealous of O'Mahoney's tremendous popularity. Danno is getting the cheers that were formerly his.

The old champion never likes the new. He is resentful of the youthful challenger who is the darling of the gods and who is crashing his way to fame. It is difficult for him to surrender his place in the sun to the newcomer.

* * *

There is an old sports adage to the effect they never come back. Strangler Lewis in wrestling, Tony Canzoneri, Max Schmeling and James J. Braddock in boxing, and a few other sports have upset this adage.

$5000 Handicap Week's Feature

Appetizer

FOR HOLIDAY $10,000 STAKE FEATURE

By Walter Kiley

Rockingham Park, N. H., May 20—The New Hampshire Handicap, another of those $5000 added stake events in which three-year-olds and upward compete over the mile and one-sixteenth, headlines the first full week of the season's horse race meeting here.

The Saturday feature has attracted the finest of the stables.

It serves as an excellent prelude to the high-light event of the first half meeting, the Decoration Day Handicap, in which the winners of the holiday stake will split a purse of $10,000 added.

Sustaining the New Hampshire Handicap of Saturday will be the New England Claiming Handicap of Wednesday, a sprint of $5000 added.

PASS MILLION

Twenty-seven nominations have been filed.

The list includes such performers as Ral Paar's Star Porter, favorite in the opening day Speed Handicap, which became pocketed in the early running; Capt. Argo, Wise Prince, Bachelor Dinner, Gentle Knight, The Dark, Wise Anne, Chinese Empress and others.

One claiming race of $1000 and six $800 claiming races complete the program.

General Manager Lou Smith today expressed complete satisfaction with the response both in attendance and in mutuel handle for the first four days of the meeting.

More than $4,000 persons attended and wagered $1,170,535, a total which indicates that all Rockingham records are about to be smashed.

PROGRESSION

Saturday's crowd of 22,000 with a handle of $393,176 was far short of being a Salem record. But it was easily the biggest day in early season the track ever experienced.

The best tote handle was on September 15, 1934 when $544,644 exchanged hands. The next biggest was on July 4, 1933, when a total of $468,774 was wagered.

Smith's optimism comes from the fact that each of the four days has shown an increase in the amount of money bet over similar days in the opening meeting a year ago.

The present meeting is running more than $50,000 ahead of a year ago and is improving as the season progresses.

Referees Balk at Arena Go

Bull Martin's request for the elimination of rule and referee in his bout with Emil Dusek at the Arena Wednesday night may be granted unless Promotor Alex MacLean has some success today in his search for a referee.

MacLean has approached two noted officials but both turned him down cold, declaring flatly they wanted no part of being in the middle when the bad Bull and Emil come together in a three falls match to a finish.

Their first meeting—a 20 minute draw—made rough-house history at the Arena as both broke all the rules in the book and hurled each other over the ring ropes.

Universal Service Special Cable

America had clinched five match points with a doubles victory Saturday, and two singles triumphs the day before. It won the series, 4 to 1, with a split in the Sunday singles.

Mako, who has been used in doubles only, was subbing for Donald Budge, the Oakland redhead, against Reyes in a good will gesture toward the Mexican team. Burke, who is also Mako's partner, figured to beat Reyes easily.

The gesture proved costly, however, for Mako fell into a chair on the sidelines during the fifth set and was carried off the field.

He was trailing two games to one in the final set when the accident occurred. Reyes won by default, 1—6, 6—3, 8—6, 4—6.

The injury may keep Mako out of tennis for weeks. The youthful Californian had played on his nerve since the second set, when his stomach became severely upset.

Bryan M "Buisy" Grant of Atlanta, national clay court champion, easily defeated Daniel Hernandez, Mexico's 18-year-old star, 6—3, 6—3, in the second singles match. The diminutive Grant outplayed and outmaneuvered the Mexican throughout.

CRONIN DINNER TONIGHT

Carrigan, Evans and Griffith Attend

A great guy will get a great big hand this evening when New England fandom pays honor to Joe Cronin, fighting leader of the Red Sox, around the banquet board at the Copley-Plaza.

Leaders in political, civil and military life and sport celebrities past and present, will join with the fans in tossing oral bouquets at the guest of honor.

For the past two months Arthur Crowley and his aids have been working arduously to make the affair a success.

Bill Cunningham will serve as toastmaster. Among the guests will be Governor James M. Curley, Governor Louis Brann of Maine, Governor Theodore Green of Rhode Island, Mayor Mansfield, Bill Carrigan, Walter Johnson, Ex-governor Joseph B. Ely and Professor Robert Rogers of M. I. T., the man who first handed out the advice to marry the boss' daughter, which Cronin followed.

JOE CRONIN

An elaborate entertainment program has been arranged consisting of several leading acts of vaudeville, an orchestra which will provide dance music after the dinner ceremonies and the great laugh producer, Al. Schacht, Red Sox coach.

One of the surprises is expected to be the number of women fans who will be in attendance. The fair sex have taken their share of the 70 tables that have already been sold.

By Bill Grimes

Since the six district teams went under the half way wire a fortnight ago, Middlesex has won three consecutive matches and is now deadlocked with Midland in first place, with two matches still to be played.

In the ninth match today, Middlesex is playing The Country Club at Brookline and should come through with its fifth straight victory.

From the start of the season Middlesex has been rated as one of the strongest teams in the W. G. A., but during the first half of the championship race it lost to Midland and The Country Club and was in third place as the field swung into the final round.

By beating Central, Northern and Midland, Mrs. W. J. Halnan's aggregation slipped into a first place tie and is now favored to win the title.

Midland was burning up the league until it encountered Middlesex last week at Concord and may be the victim of another upset today, for Central is displaying more and more strength in each match.

Two of the Central District players, Mrs. S. B. Rogall and Mrs. E. Brilliant, are playing their home course today and should contribute two points to the Central cause.

Southern will try to keep in the running by beating Northern today at the Kernwood Country Club. After the unexpected defeat by Central on Thursday, Southern will be in no mood to mess around with Northern, which is the weakest team in the association.

BY 5 AND 3 LITTLE; NEAR DEFEAT, WINS BY 1 UP

St. Annes-on-the-Sea, May 20 (AP)—W. Lawson Little, Jr., of San Francisco today was compelled to make some sensational recoveries to win his first-round match in defense of the British amateur golf championship. Little defeated T. H. Parker, a Briton, 1 up.

By Associated Press

St. Anne's-on-the-Sea Eng., May 20—One of Champion Lawson Little's chief sources of worry, Jock McLean, was removed from the British amateur golf championship today in the first round.

McLean was defeated by J. H. Brant of Blackwell in the first major upset of the tournament.

Bryant stuck his approach at the 349-yard 13th hole close to the pin and holed out for a birdie three to eliminate McLean as a small, early morning gallery groaned upon seeing the second favorite pass out.

The American contingent, topped by defending Champion William Lawson Little, Jr., of San Francisco, was reduced to 11 with the last minute withdrawal of Robert W. Barbour of Paterson, N. J.

Robert W. Knowles, Jr., of the Country Club, Brookline, Mass., gained the second round at the expense of D. O Donnell Higgins of Montreal, Canada. Knowles won, five up and three to play.

Knowles, shooting steadily and unbothered by the high wind, defeated Higgins, 5 and 3, and would have won by an even larger margin but for the fact he picked up his ball on the 13th green thinking his opponent had conceded him the hole.

Douglas Grant, the transplanted Californian now living in London, was sidetracked by R. De Lloyd of Aberstwyth after two extra holes, De Lloyd winning on the 20th.

One of the most lopsided results of the first round was turned in by Sam Leaver of Fairhaven, who defeated P. Da Gooreynd of Stoke Pogea 9 and 7 after leading sight up at the end of nine holes.

The battle between the two former British Walker Cup stars—Lionel Munn and Tony Torrance—was won by the towering Torrance, who eliminated his compatriot by the score of 3 and 2.

AGA KHAN Racer Choice IN DERBY

Router Has Edge on Salem Field

By Dave Wilson

BEST BET—Cohort Miss—Seventh

Rockingham Park, May 20—Cohort Miss, T. F. Sword's sturdy router, is dropped into a soft spot in the one mile and a furlong of the seventh number here tomorrow afternoon.

The fleet daughter of Cohort turned in a corking performance in placing to C. V. Whitney's Synod only a few days back.

She a nothing with one except on, the same kind that finished behind her in that outing and apparently needs only a smooth ride in order to grace the winner's circle

FIRST RACE—HIATUS, SIGHTING BAR, JOHN TIO.

HIATUS ran a winning race on Saturday, after being crowded back at the start. She figures to stand a world of beating in an affair of this sort, with an even shake in racing luck. SIGHTING BAR, a brisk morning worker, displayed good speed in slightly better company last time out. JOHN TIO, third to Squawker, figures next best.

MICROBE and FLAVOR, which will run coupled in the wakering as the C. V. WHITNEY ENTRY, strike me as a standout. MICROBE, a clever Jamaica winner, finished fourth to the fleet White Cockade in 1:10 FLAVOR was the runner-up to Deliberate on opening day. SEABISCUIT, the main dancer, turned in several noteworthy performances before shipping in from New York. BLACK MISTRESS may have been a trifle short of work last time

THIRD RACE—CRACK FLYER, STAROGAN, FLAG BEARER.

CRACK FLYER strikes me as the class. The Gallagher color bearer picked up 117 pounds and won as his rider pleased against cheaper once last Saturday. No telling just how good he is right now. STAROGAN, if sent right back, is strictly the horse to fear. Will Irvine's charge was a cracking good second last trip. FLAG BEARER, a frequent winner on Texas tracks, is reported on razor edge by the cockers. He may beat this rating

FOURTH RACE—RED BADGE, BELLE GRIER, MOANE KEALA.

RED BADGE, fourth to Spud, is dropping ten pounds off that effor under a feather of 98 pounds, the Bubbling Over miss figures to be a hard mare to down. BELLE GRIER finished a nose in front of the top last time, but hardly looms capable of repeating the feat under weight arrangements. She is dropping only a single pound, making a nine-pound shift in favor of the top one. MOANE KEALA, bonnet as they come, is usually there or thereabouts at the finish.

FIFTH RACE—DANCING CLOUD, CURRANTS, NANDI

Stringing along with DANCING CLOUD in this wide-open race. He rates the call on the strength of his good Maryland form. CURRANTS turned in several nice efforts in Maryland, but was unable to cross with the top one in their last meeting. NANDI, a gun from the barrier, can stop fast a mile begins. She'll be on the front end as far as she cares to go.

SIXTH RACE—COHORT MISS, SAND BABY, GUAPITO

The increased distance of this affair will be to COHORT MISS' advantage. If speed, hope up and heads her for the hay sugar it will likely be SAND BABY. The latter was two lengths in back of the top one and racing strongly lastime. GUAPITO is from a smart outfit that likes a route. This may be the right spot.

SEVENTH RACE—HUG AGAIN, CHARTRES, SPEEDMORE.

HUG AGAIN, sharpened up in sprints, is dropping down where she can hardly miss. The charts attest to her ability at the distance. CHARTRES, a galloping Similco winner, is endowed with a smattering of class. He is strictly the one to fear. SPEEDMORE, fast and faint-hearted, manages to stick it out every now and then. He may take it all

EIGHTH RACE—ARMY GAME, PLAYMORE, BETHLEHEM

ARMY GAME, a clever route runner, closed like a runaway express in his debut over this course a few days back. That affort indicated that he would be a hard horse to drub over this distance. PLAYMORE, the main danger, was a clever third last time. BETHLEHEM STAR is in smart hands and will bear watching.

Net Doubles at Longwood in August

By Universal Service

That tennis popularity in America grows apace was revealed today by the U. S. L. T. A. with the announcement that more than five hundred senior and junior tournaments have been sanctioned for 1935.

Three hudred of the events are in the senior class, consisting of competitions in men's singles, women's singles, mens doubles, women's doubles and mixed doubles. Two hundred are for those in the junior and boys' and girls' divisions.

Acting on the national sanction and schedula committee wens Jones W. Mercereau, chairman; Lawrence A. Baker, Louis J. Carruthers, Dwight F. Davenport, Jr., Charles B. Garland, Paul W. Gibbons, Walter Merrill Hall, Joseph W. Ivy, Russell B. Kingman, Julius S. Myrick, Walter L. Pate, Joseph V. Wear, and Ralph W. Westcott.

The first of the senior national championships on a program is the clay court affair, designated for June 17, at River Forest, Illinois. Bryan Grant, the Atlantan, will defend here. A week later come the national intercollegiates at the Northwestern University courts in Evanston, Ill.

August 16 will see the Wightman Cup international team match at Forest Hills. The national doubles begin at Longwood on August 19, and at the same time in New Orleans will be held the national public parks championships, the national singles for both men and women, Wimbledon style, open at the West Side Tennis Club on August 29

OWENS LEADS U. S. RECORD ASSAULT

CRACK LOW HURDLE MARK

By Associated Press

The hero of the latest assault on the record books by this country's college track and field stars is Jesse Owens of Ohio State.

This all-around leader of a brilliant Negro athletic crop that includes Eulace Peacock of Temple and Ben Johnson of Columbia enjoyed a field day in the Ohio State-Wisconsin - Northwestern - Chicago quadrangle meet at Evanston on Saturday cracked one world record, tied another and came within a tenth of a second of a third.

Owens not only shaved a tenth of a second off the 220-yard low hurdle mark of 23 seconds, held jointly by Charlie Brookins and Norman Paul but tied the universal standard of 9.4 for the 100-yard dash, missed Roland Locke's record of 20.6 for the 220-yard dash by only a tenth of a second and wound up by winning the broad jump at 25 feet 5 1-16 inches.

STARS SHINE

While Owens was dominating the track and field show for the day, there were other notable achievements by Peacock, George Anderson and Al Olson of Southern California; Jimmy Luvelle of the University of California at Los Angeles; Glenn Hardin of Louisiana State, and Herman Neugass of Tulane

Peacock was clocked in 9.5 for the 100-yard dash in a dual meet between Temple and Villanova, while Anderson and Olson were stars in Southern California's smashing triumph in the California intercollegiates.

Olson covered 23 feet 7¾ inches in the broad jump, while Anderson took the 100 in 9.7 and the 220 in 21.3.

It was in the California intercollegiates too that Luvelle, soon to defend his 400 meter title in the I. C. A. A. A. championships, showed a return to last year's form by winning the 440 in 47.4.

Hardin, the world record holder for the 400 meter hurdles, led Louisiana State to a decisive triumph in the southeastern conference championships, running the quarter in 47.2 and taking the 220 yard low hurdles in 23.4.

Neugass, Tulane's sprinting ace, was clocked in 20.9 for the 220 and 9.6 for the 100 in the trials of these events, both of which he won in slower time.

TITLE GO In Mid-Ocean ON FIRE

SEATS AT $500 OR $1000 EACH

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

New York, May 20—There has been from time to time a lot of loose talk about some otherwise orderly citizen who has decided to promote a Baer-Schmeling heavyweight championship prize fight on shipboard in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, instead of up a tree or something reasonable like that.

The idea proposed at the outset to be heavily comical but either the talk is getting a little looser or I am. Anyhow, I met the man today who wants to do it.

He's got an option on the Berengaria. He's lining up capital for the project, either for this year or next.

He was down at Asbury Park the other day, offering Ancil Hoffman $250,000 for Baer's end. But Hoffman was routinely too crafty. He asked $350,000 for Baer's end. It seems he's particular about Baer's end, especially when he doesn't get it.

The "gate" is supposed to take care of those minor details, the witnesses being limited to a thousand at $500 apiece. Maybe it's five hundred at $1000 apiece. It just doesn't seem to matter.

Neither does the gambling concession nor the bar. They'll more than carry their upkeep, as the man isn't interested in chicken fodder. He has something better than that, namely, television with sound effects from the ringside.

He's to hire theaters and halls all over the country, charge a dollar admission and show the action in his own prize fight. He says the radio won't be worth its weight in blather, a statement that inclines me to the feeling that here is a man who may have something, after all. I'm for anyone who can out-blather the radio.

As a matter of fact, he's a graduate of one of our leading eastern universities, he's quite a respected and successful lawyer here in town; has made considerable money in his own right and claims to have backing in the tens of thousands.

I'm the man isn't crazy, but I I guess I am.

Your entry must reach the "Daily Double" Handicap Game Editor of the Boston American, P. O. Box 1946, or deliver to 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, not later than 1 P. M., Tuesday, May 21

Here are the Rules:

To play the "Daily Double" Game name the horses you think will win the first and third races at Rockingham. Then place the names of the horses you believe will run second and third in each of the two races.

Tickets to the Rockingham Races will be given each day to winners.

Winners will be picked under the following rules:

Entries that pick the "Daily Double" will be given first consideration. Should there be fewer "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, winners of the remaining tickets will be scored as follows: First counts 8 points, second counts 4 points and third counts 2 points in each of the two races. The entries scoring the largest number of points will be declared the winners.

In the event there are more "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, the prizes will be given to the "Daily Double" winners who score the largest number of points in selecting the horses that run second and third in the first and third races. In scoring these winners the following rules will be observed: Place counts 4 points and show 2 points for each race. Tied contestants will each receive a ticket.

In the event any of the horses you pick are scratched, the next horse will be automatically moved up one space on your list. For example, should your first choice fail to start, the second horse named becomes your first choice and the third horse your second choice.

Except where horses are scratched, your selections must run in the order in which you list them on your entry blank in order to be counted. ONLY THE NAME OF ONE HORSE MAY BE SELECTED WHERE THE HORSES ARE COUPLED IN BETTING, AS IN ENTRIES AND FIELDS. The decision of the judges will be final and no entries returned.

A coupon for Wednesday's "Daily Double" selections will be printed Tuesday.

Each day's winners will be printed in all editions of the Boston Evening American the day after the races are run (Saturday's winners in Monday's editions).

WHITEHEAD

Real Big League Pitcher

By Joe Cashman

The Red Sox have had no cause to complain of horse racing competition as yet.

The first three games of their current home stay attracted over 35,000 cash customers to the Fens, which means approximately 12,000 per day or about twice as many as are required by a club to stay out of the "red."

It's strange, nevertheless, that the Fenway management doesn't do all in its power to add to its popularity by saving one of its pitching aces for a Sunday crowd.

Johnny Whitehead was exhausted in the final frame of the Sabbath tilt. He had served up almost as many pitches as he would ordinarily in two games. Until he weakened, he looked to be every inch the great pitcher he is rated.

His most effective delivery, however, wasn't his famed "sinker," but a dazzling sidearm curve. His "sinker" is a corker, but he had a lot of trouble in keeping it from sinking right into the dirt.

Johnny Welch was the only Sox pitcher who looked at all impressive. Henry Johnson, Rube Walberg and George Pipgras were all hit hard.

The Sox had two runs in, the bases loaded and but one out when Whitehead was yanked.

Mel Almada, in a two-strike no-ball hole, pulled out with a smashing single that meant two more markers.

Then Wyatt steadied to fan Dahlgren and get Wes Ferrell, with the count 3 and 2, on a hard grounder to Hayes.

"Dizzy" Dean took Round Two from "Babe" Ruth as decisively as he won the opening heat at Braves Field two weeks previous.

Before 12,000 Mound City fans, "Dix" held the Bambino hitless in four trips to the platter, while the Cards made it two out of three over the Tribe, 7 to 3. Randy Moore came through with a first-inning home run.

After dropping three in a row to the Yanks, the Indians took the final game, 1, after 11 innings of battling. Big Charlie Ruffing, giving only six hits, was the victim.

The last-place Phillies climbed into a tie with the Braves when they beat Lonnie Warneke and the Cubs, 3 to 2.

The Giants were halted by rain and later tossed away a five-run lead only to whip the Reds, 6 to 5, in 10 innings. Hal Schumacher hit a home run while chalking up his 13th straight win over the Rhinelanders.

The second-place Dodgers dropped two games back of New York when they took their second straight whipping from the Pirates, 9 to 8. The Bucs lost the services of Gus Suhr, veteran first sacker, who injured his hand.

Helen Jacobs in French Court Play

By Associated Press

Paris, May 20—The French hard court championships, first of the season's major tennis fixtures, get under way today with the smallest American delegation in years.

Only Helen Jacobs, the American champion, and Dorothy Andrus of Stamford, Conn., in the women's division, and Henry Culley and Wilmer Hines in the men's will represent the United States, although virtually all the other leading players in the world are entered

Miss Jacobs again will be a potent challenger for the women's singles title, but otherwise the American invasion lacks the strength to cope with such a big-class field.

Standing in Miss Jacobs' path will be Margaret Scriven, English girl who defeated the American champion, 7—5, 4—6, 6—1 in the final round a year ago, as well as Mme. Rene Mathieu of France, Madame Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling of Germany, Lolette Payot of Switzerland, Joan Hartigan of Australia and the Chilean sensation, Anita Lizana.

The men's singles field includes all the outstanding European players, including the defending champion, Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany, Fred Perry and H. W. (Bunny) Austin of England.

CLEVELAND IN TOWN

Indians Most Feared Of A. L. Clubs

LEFTIES CAN LICK 'EM, SAYS CHISOX MANAGER

By Joe Cashman

Walter Johnson's Cleveland Indians, the gang everybody agrees to disagree about, come stalking into the Fens this p. m. for three encounters with our Red Sox.

If any two persons hold exactly the same opinion as to the strength of the Forest City entry, your envoy has yet to meet them.

For instance, Rogers Hornsby and Jimmy Dykes will tell you that "Big Barney" has far and away the best club in the league. Hornsby will go on and pick it to win the pennant. Dykes will wager even money it won't.

On the other hand, dynamic "Micky Cochrane has started a delightful little feud by terming the Indians the most over-rated outfit in the circuit.

FEARS TIGERS

"The real race for the flag won't start until about the first of August. Until then we all appear slated to fool around getting nowhere.

"The club to beat is Detroit. "I'm glad Chicago is doing so well. I hope it keeps on. But I can't see it being a contender down the home stretch.

"My club may be better when Billy Knickerbocker is strong enough to play shortstop regularly. But young Hughes is doing very well. Berger, my new second sacker, will stay in there, and he'll hit."

In other words, if you want a line on this club that has everybody and his brother guessing, Walter invites you to take a look for yourself and form your own opinion.

It comes here in second place, presenting a lineup considerably different from last year, when it finished third

The newcomers are Berger, from New Orleans; Hughes, who got his chance when Knickerbocker was stricken with appendicitis; Bruce Campbell, former Brownie, and Al Wright, a rookie from Minneapolis, who alternate in rightfield, and Wally Stewart, ex-Senator south paw who blanked the Yanks yesterday.

SOX LOSE, 6-5

The veterans include the slugging Hal Trosky at first, Sammy Hale, moved from second to third in place of Willie Kamm, who occasionally sees action; Karl Averill, in center, Joe Vosmik in left. Pitchers Harder, Hudlin, Pearson, Hildebrand and Brown, and Catchers Pytlak and Myatt.

Jimmy Dykes, on his arrival here with the White Sox, told us that southpaws were poison to the Indians. Then along came Vic Tamulis and Vernon Gomez to white wash the Tribe.

If there's any justice, the strategy will play dividends. Because one of those hitters' might have won the Sabbath tilt from Chicago and given the Fenway flock the "rubber" of the three-game series.

Instead, though the Croninmen gained the honor of being the first to chase Johnny Whitehead from the hill, they lost out 6 to 5 when they started Henry Johnson and finished with George Pipgras.

A Red Sox four run rally in the ninth brought Whitlow Wyatt to Whitehead's aid, but the star rookie was credited with his sixth straight victory.

Greyhound Oldest Dog Known to History

MEDIAEVAL KINGS ENJOYED RACES

NO. 1
THE RACING GREYHOUND

The sleek-bodied, powerfully constructed greyhound is the oldest dog known to history.

Russ Murray with two of the greyhounds which will race at Wonderland Park in Revere. Murray will manage the track, the first of its kind in the Bay State.

A glance at this conspicuous citizen of the canine kingdom suggests immediately the grace of a gazelle and the speed of a deer

His ancestry can be traced back to a time beyond the building of the pyramids

He then was as he is now, a lovable, domesticated dog and notably fond of children

It is believed that through succeeding centuries the greyhound was mated with wild dogs, thus bringing about the various breeds which exist today

The greyhound has no acute sense of smell as have other dogs. This is offset, however, by uncanny hearing, remarkable eyesight, and speed that makes him the fastest canine alive.

Although a greyhound in full flight can leap from 12 to 20 feet as against 25 to 27 for a race horse the greyhound can keep pace with a horse for a quarter mile. After that the endurance of the horse triumphs

Dog racing has been traced back to a time prior to the Christian era. In the middle ages it enjoyed tremendous popularity in England There are quantities of material available giving accounts of the racing of greyhounds before royalty

In England in the middle ages reigning monarchs were exceptionally partial to the greyhound and frequently as payment in lieu of money accepted so many "leashes of greyhounds."

BRAVES Open Series WITH CUBS

Ed Brandt was expected to hurl for the invaders, and Tex Carleton or Bill Lee for the home side.

Brandt has always been effective against the Cubs, getting several low hit games here last season.

The Braves just came in from St. Louis where they dropped the final game to the Cards, 7 to 3. Dizzy Dean gave the Tribe only seven hits.

WRITERS Meet BRYAN

SUFFOLK RACE SECRETARY

Frank J. Bryan, racing secretary of Suffolk Downs, was officially introduced to the turf writers of Boston at a Sunday luncheon at the Union Club.

The "Dean" made a most favorable impression. Racing secretary at Pimlico ever since 1900, his talk centered largely around the proper division of winners' purses

"We won't have any purses at East Boston under $1000. The split will be $700 to the winner, $150 for second, $100 for third and $50 to the fourth horse.

"That $50 will often prove a godsend to the owner who just missed the bigger money.

It will help him to pay his jockey and entrance fees and will likewise be a boon to the butcher, the baker and the grain dealer, who might otherwise suffer for the non-payment of his bills."

Other tid-bits of news announced by Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., of the Eastern Racing Association was a $10,000 stake race on Saturday, the fourth day of opening week racing; the appointment of William "Bunny" Almy, Jr., of North Shore horse and society circles, as superintendent; the importation of Bryan's Pimlico crew of Edward J. Brennan, John Turner, Jr., and M. C. Shea; pari-mutuel betting for the Brookline and Raceland Eastern Horse Club steeplechase meetings in June; and the completion of the early stages of construction work at the new East Boston track.

Almy, the new superintendent is 33 years old. He joined the Royal Flying Corps in England when only 15 and received his commission just as the armistice was signed

He recently resigned as superintendent of Colonel Albert Pierce's 5000-acre farm at Canterbury, Va. He constructed a mile track of seventh-eighths of a mile. The colonel had 40 hunters there, 10 horses in training and 15 brood mares

Blood Tells

Man O'War's Progeny Adds Lustre to Fair Play Strain

By Walter Kiley

Rockingham Park, N. H., May 20—Eighteen years old only a couple of months ago, Man o' War, admittedly the greatest thoroughbred racer in the history of America turfdom, continues to sire famous sons and daughters which go on to add new lustre to the prestige of the royal Fair Play strain.

There in a Kentucky stall where he is living out a round of deserved peace and contentment at the hands of those to whom he brought wealth won all but one of the 21 races he started during his years and piles additional dividends on the more than a million dollars which have already accrued to his owner throughout his long and eventful career.

Broke Man o' War's Father

The 31-year-old horseman was Man o' War's trainer, the man who broke him, petted and pampered him, cuddled him through the seething years into the fifth year of his leading money winner of his day, and all the time he was.

"I broke Fair Play, Man o' War's father, and broke and trained Mahubu, his mother," Feustel finally remarked. "I was with Samuel D. Riddle when he bought August Belmont's entire racing stable in the late war-time period.

"Man o' War was in the lot, and I broke and trained him, too.

"Another jump and he would have had upset the winner

"And I went through that great three-year-old season of his when he captured the Preakness, Withers, Belmont, Sinsyesant, Dwyer, Miller, Travers, Lawrence Realization, Jockey Club, Potomac and Kenilworth Park stakes, one right after another without a setback.

"I saw him amass a new high of $249,465, big money at the time in which few of the smaller purses And I have followed his stud career, often making a visit to see him.

"His owner was getting $2000 for each of his offsprings, of which there were several hundred

"The price is still as high as $2500. And Riddle, himself, profits by some of 20 sons and daughters which he keeps for his own stable each year.

"I know that horse like I know my own son. He loved to run. He did everything well and could run all day, at any time and at any distance.

MAN O' WAR

Greatest Blood Strain in U. S.

"He was high strung, and you couldn't fool around him. But you couldn't help loving him. And when I took him to the Rose Tree farm for the rest of his days, I want to tell you I felt pretty badly.

"But what I want to say is that the Fair Play blood is the greatest strain in America. I don't think it will ever again be approached, as I don't think another Man o' War will come along in our time, either.

"Maryland Flag, Crusader, Mars, Bateau and a host of other great stake winners had that strain through Man o' War

"Bob Fitzsimmons' son had his dad's freckles and looked and acted like a fighter. But he never was a good one. Ty Cobb's son didn't even like to play baseball. The same is true in other cases.

"But Man o' War's offspring have a heritage which sets them aside. Blood tells and will continue as long as the strain continues."

Roxbury Pin Loop Holds Banquet

Prizes were awarded to Elk Towel winner of the championship by three points over Public Theaters and ten other teams in the contest. Elks Towel Inc. passed the high team record with 1670. Public took the team single with 576, individual single went to Wilbur with 148; three strings to Ellis with 379 and individual average to Andrews with 105

The Roxbury Business-men's League was recognized as the fastest amateur loop in Greater Boston no less than 11 of its bowlers having an individual average of 100 and more.

B. C. NINE To Start Trip WEDNESDAY

After amassing a fine record of nine wins against three losses, the Boston College baseball team will take the road this week to seek honors on foreign fields

The Eagles will leave on Wednesday and return next Sunday or Monday.

On Thursday the Eagles will play St. Johns in Brooklyn, on Friday they will attempt to even the score with Villanova in Philadelphia and on Saturday they will return to New York for their return match with the Violets of Fordham.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

Springfield Dentist and Doctor Battle Madman With Knife in Locked Room

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY!

You know, boys and girls, after I got out of the dentist's chair yesterday all I could think of was how nice it would be to turn the tables on one of those D. D. S. fe" s and give him a taste of his own -ine?

FLOYD GIBBONS

Boy, oh Boy! What a thrill!

But, by golly, this morning I picked up a letter from DR. JAMES McHUGH, D. D. S., of 12 HANCOCK STREET, SPRINGFIELD—yes, sir, a dentist—and I'll be doggoned if Doc. didn't go and change all my ideas.

After reading his story I could almost go and have a tooth pulled out just to please him—and you will, too, after you've read his story today.

As a matter of fact, though, Doc. McHugh hasn't been pulling any teeth lately at all. He had to give up his practice—dangerously ill eight years ago when he contracted sleeping sickness and lay in bed for over three years!

When he was finally able to get on his feet again he was forced to take up work that would keep him outside.

Doc was close to death many times—sleeping sickness is nearly always fatal—during that long three years but he says that at no time did he feel as close to death as he did the night he had the adventure that brings him into the Adventurers' Club.

He was visiting his cousin who is a physician in New York city, that night, when his cousin received an emergency call. Doc, being interested in medicine readily consented to go along and Dentist and Doctor made the call together.

It was a charity call, but Doc says his cousin gave just as much attention to these mercy cases as he did to his own patients. Arriving at a dreary looking tenement they found their case to be one of childbirth.

A sickly-looking Polish woman was in pain when they arrived. Her husband, a huge hulk of a man, hustled them unceremoniously into the sick room without a word.

Doc says that he and his cousin saw at once the case was serious. The woman presented all the signs of undernourishment and the physician shook his head sadly as he went to work and did all that his profession could do in such a case.

As the men worked feverishly the husband stood by silently watching every move. He never uttered a word or made a move to help. His dull eyes lit up for a moment when the baby was brought safely into the world.

But as the two doctors worked to keep the spark of life burning in the little body, the dull but watchful expression came back to his heavy features.

After 20 minutes of fighting to save the little one's life—and after every means that science offers had been used—God decided against them and took the little life that He had just given.

Doctor McHugh says that he and his physician cousin were disconsolate. The mother's life was saved but they had hoped to save the baby as well.

They stood looking down at the little mite thinking, he says how powerless Man is in the battle for Life and Death, when a sudden noise startled him.

It was the key turning in the lock. He and his cousin looked up and what they saw made them think only of saving their own lives

The surly husband had locked the bedroom door behind them and as they looked he turned with a snarl—his face contorted with insane passion—and sprung at them.

The two doctors knew at once that they had to deal with a madman—the strain had unhinged the poor man's mind and in his delirium he saw these strangers as the murderers of his baby.

The blow stunned him, he says, but he saw his cousin go down under a rain of vicious, sledge-hammer swings—he saw the blood dripping from his cousin's mouth and then as he looked—almost in a daze—he saw the madman draw out of his pocket a long knife!

Doctor McHugh thinks it was the knife that galvanized him into action. He staggered up and struck at the snarling face before him just as the madman aimed a knife thrust at the physician—the knife slashed his arm—he felt it cut into his side but he fought on—he saw his cousin—who had regained his feet—make a try for the knife and blood spurted from his arm as he did so.

The two doctors made for the door. They found the key on the floor and opening the door almost fell down the stairs to the street. Both men had been slashed many times but when given first aid the wounds were found to be not serious.

But the case of the poor husband, Doc says, was very serious It took five policemen to subdue the sorrow crazed man.

His strength was super-human and he injured three of the police before he could be subdued. He was taken to an insane asylum where it was found that his sufferings had left him hopelessly and violently insane.

After that Doc had his own troubles, but he says his pity is all for the father whose mind and child died the same night.

Thanks, Doc, and I take it all back—what I said about dentists—and I hope you get insomnia and never have a twinge of sleeping sickness again.

N. E. MILLS

Facing MANY Problems

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

News winds continue to buffet the New England textile industry with good, bad and hopeful dispatches. The variation in itself testifies to the unsettled state of mill affairs.

Both the bleachery and mills of the Naumkeag Mills opened today after a shutdown of a week. Hope is expressed that operations will continue at a fair pace. J. Foster Smith, agent of the mills, is not prepared to say how many hours they will run. Up in Biddeford, Me., the Pepperell Manufacturing Co. is seeking a cut in taxes. A people's committee is expected to ask the assessors to adjust valuations.

These two items illustrate the internal and external handicaps facing mill operators. Local taxes on the one hand and the processing tax on the other. The latter, it seems to be here to stay for a time, and New England cities and towns, dependent largely on cotton textiles to a large extent, are faced with the prospect of reducing their levies in order to afford some relief to operators. This regardless of whether local taxes are fair or not. Only by such measures will they be able to help stave off the public auctions now threatened for so many closed properties.

State Street Jottings: Much interest in the Railway Age report that the Bangor & Aroostook is ready to negotiate for two new, heavy freight locomotives . . . The anticipated trip to Boston of the Englishman, L. L. B. Angas, has some of the Utility fields all excited . . . Since they hope for first hand proof of his reported fact that the momentum phase of the boom has already begun . . . Strength of hide prices, while weak, bears out along a manufacturing problem for Massachusetts shoe concerns . . . It means higher shoe prices . . . And consumer resistance is feared in some quarters.

Boston brokerage opinions are more divided on the market than in some time. Quite a few commentators have turned skeptical, to say the least. They say the future will be dictated by unpredictable developments. The outcome of the bonus, the final disposition of NRA and the silver policy. As a result selling advices are encountered quite frequently, though basically the bulls are still in the majority. Caution at least seems warranted in making new commitments.

Notes: Parker Hathaway, Boston investment counsellor, is advising a careful policy in regard to silver shares . . . Since current quotations for certain issues seems based on rather fantastic earnings . . . Reports on New England construction are becoming more and more cheerful . . . Before the year is out builders may be supplying the industrial volume lost by mills . . . Public ownership developments are attracting attention to Boston Elevated and Eastern Massachusetts on the Boston board.

PUTS VALUATION On Rock Island

Washington, May 19—The Interstate Commerce Commission has found that the valuation of railroad property for purposes as of December 31, 1932, of Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway System, to be $457,847,229 for total owned property and $445,809,449 for total used property.

The commission found that the value of Rock Island Railroad, which is the largest portion of the system, was $335,000,000.

WISCONSIN GAS Net Is Halved

Wisconsin Gas & Electric Co. reports for 12 months ended March 31, 1935, net of $332,830, equivalent to $7.02 a share on 6 per cent preferred stock.

This compares with $671,302, or $14.15 a share on 6 per cent preferred stock in 12 months ended March 31, 1934. All the common is owned by the North American Edison Co.

ASPHALT Grants Options

General Asphalt Company has granted options on 2000 shares of common stock at $13 a share flat which may be exercised at any time before March 1, 1938, and options on 2000 shares at $15.25 a shares which may be exercised before March 1, 1938.

NEW YORK STOCKS QUOTATIONS TO 2 30 P. M. NET CHANGES

STOCK Prices Work HIGHER

SMALL GAINS RULE

New York, May 20— The stock market broke away from wavering commodities today and worked its way slightly higher.

While gains were mostly small, they were well distributed among all divisions, with communication shares and alcohols the most active groups.

Corporate bonds idled along without showing much change, but U. S. Government issues were firm. Leading commodities were generally backward.

Wheat prices dropped in Chicago, under selling inspired by an abundance of rain over the grain belt, and cotton was inclined to sag under Southern offerings.

A considerable portion of the share market displayed irregularity at the opening but a fairly broad demand developed for communication shares and within a short time the entire list responded to the upward trend.

Modest gains were mad by shares of American Telephone, Radio Corporation, Columbia, United S. Steel, Westinghouse, Western Union, International Telephone, Commercial Solvents, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Hide & Leather, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, National Dairy including Bridgeport Brass, Montgomery Ward, Consolidated Gas, Union Pacific, United Aircraft and Sperry Corporation. Columbia Pictures shot up 4 points but subsequently relinquished part of the gain.

Motors and mining shares had some difficulty in keeping up with the rest of the list when profittaking got under way. Chrysler was especially active and managed to hold its gain and close unchanged to around 47½ but at this juncture a lot of stock was offered and the investment area.

General Motors held about even and minor losses occurred in leading issues including U. S. Smelting and Cerro De Pasco.

Current Topics

With developments in the business world over the week-end generally constructive and no obstacle sighted immediately ahead, the brokerage fraternity kept close watch on Washington in hopes of accurately gauging political tides, particularly as to the outcome of the bonus bill squabble and the fate of NRA.

Just what effect it would have on industry if the NRA act was allowed to expire in June was the subject of much speculation.

Some observers frankly believed the lower branch of Congress would put up quite a fight before giving in to the Senate, which extended the Blue Eagle's existence only ten months instead of the two years desired by the President.

Reports from Chicago that steel production in that area would be sharply curtailed this week came as no surprise in view of the fact that takings by motor manufacturers have shown definite signs of declining.

Steel makers around Chicago are understood to be operating around to about 50 per cent of capacity for more than two months.

Trade reports included an advance of $1 a ton in the price of lead, the fourth in about a week and an increase in the output of 1,000,000 reported for one of the leading retail shoe concerns.

Encouraging news articles was aided somewhat by the steadiness in the steel industry reported by the magazine Steel" which was attributed to recent settlement of labor difficulties in the automobile trade.

"The appearance of firmness" in the scrap market also tended to bring reassurance to market analysts.

POWER'S NET Shows a Gain

Mississippi River Power Co. and subsidiary reports for 12 months ended March 31, 1935, net of $1,354,057, equivalent to $16.44 a share on 6 per cent preferred stock.

This compares with $862,177, or $10.47 a share on preferred in 12 months ended March 31, 1934. Practically all the common is owned by Union Electric Light & Power Co. of Missouri.

Cast Iron Pipe in Demand

There is little activity in either the local cast iron pipe or p ig iron markets at present, though the former in some sections of the country is showing improvement over a month or so ago.

Local pig iron sales are being held back by uncertainty over fate of the code, and bookings for delivery beyond July 1 are not being made. No price changes are anticipated when filings are made May 20 for third quarter.

YEAR'S PROFIT $37.59 a Share

Union Electric Light & Power Co. of Missouri and subsidiaries report for 12 months ended March 31, 1935, net profit of $4,886,400, equivalent to $37.59 a share on combined 6 per cent and 7 per cent preferred stocks.

This compares with $4,974,099, or $38.26 a share on combined preferred stocks in 12 months ended March 31, 1934. Common is all owned by North American Edison Co.

EARNINGS UP Utility Gains

Union Electric Light & Power Co. of Illinois reports for 12 months ended March 31, 1935, net of $475,091, equivalent to $30.91 a share on 6 per cent preferred.

This compares with $3,431,742, or $30.39 a share on preferred in 12 months ended March 31, 1934. The common is all owned by the Union Electric Light & Power Co. of Missouri.

Wheat Acreage Declines

The wheat acreage for harvest in 935 as reported for 25 countries is estimated at 172,983,000 acres, against 175,883,000 reported by the same countries in 1934, when they accounted for about 87 per cent of the estimated northern hemisphere total, excluding Russia and China, the Department of Agriculture reported.

Estimates for 15 countries show rye sowings at 41,341,000 acres, an increase of about 2 per cent over the like period of 1934.

RUTH ETTING IS AIR GUEST WITH GYPSIES

By N. F. T.

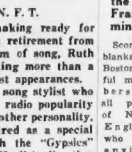
Tonight the song stylist who has won more radio popularity polls than any other personality, is to be featured as a special attraction with the "Gypsies" under Harry Horlick direction (WEEI) on the stroke of 9 p. m.

Not long ago, the blonde broadcasting star made known her intention of bidding the "mike" farewell forever. It is her desire to tour the world. Also it strikes her as graceful to leave air activity while at the peak of her career, rather than go on to become a veteran and perhaps less in demand by dialers and program planners. Ruth has a wise business head along with her striking voice and gift—yes, and she knows how to use both to good advantage.



"N. F. T."

FIRST TIME FEATURE

The Rhythm Round-Up now and said to be fast—will have its inaugural broadcast this evening (WNAC) from 6:30 to 6:45.

Sully Kendle, widely well-known young pianist, conductor, composer and arranger, and his orchestra of eleven young musicians plan to present modern rhythmic music every evening except Sunday at the same time. The program will feature Kendis' own compositions, piano solos and arrangements.

Admiral Cary T. Grayson, active head of The American Red Cross, will contribute the definition of contentment to be read on the regular "Contented Hour," (WEEI) tonight come 10 o'clock. In it, Dr. Grayson will embody an appeal for support of "Poppy Day."

Orchestral numbers chosen by Morgan L. Eastman for this concert include: "Il Guarany Overture," by Gomez, and "Gold and Silver Waltz," by Franz Lehar.

BOOK BOOSTER

In connection with the national observance of Jewish Book Week, celebrated during this week of May 19 to 25, Fanny Goldstein, Thrasian, West End branch, Boston Public Library, and compiler of the annual publication, "Judaca," will broadcast a Jewish Book Week message (WBZ) this evening between 8:45 and 9 o'clock.

It is the aim of Jewish Book Week not only to popularize Jewish book knowledge and Jewish learning among Jews, but also to emphasize to non-Jewish friends the importance of Hebrew, literature and ideals in the development of the world's civilization.

Dr. Connolly Dies

Providence, May 20 (AP)—Dr. Thomas H. Connolly, 64, chairman of the State board of purification of waters until it went out of existence in January under the State reorganization law, died at his home in Warren today.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

LAWRENCE SHAW NATIONAL DIRECTOR

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION

The contest classic of the model building world—the Junior Birdmen outdoor air races to be held at Franklin Field—is only two weeks away and the last minute rush of entries is underway.

Scores of rule books and entry blanks have been mailed from Boston wing headquarters to hopeful members in all parts of New England who are anxious to compete for the valuable awards and the title of Outdoor Champion of 1935.

More than 75 official entries have been filed and within the next few days these are expected to be augmented by 25 more.

Dante Fiocchieri

Rare indeed is the entrant who is not an Eagle member and who will not try for the coveted Ace bar which can be won in this year's meet on Saturday, June 1. The contest on Saturday, June 8, offers the only opportunity for the next six months by which members may earn their rank in the organization.

And the boys and girls are not going to miss it!

There is still time to send for the contest manual and return the entry blank which is folded in the back of each booklet. But don't delay any longer. Get into this meet. Even if you don't win any of the handsome prizes, you'll gain a lot of experience and information which in the long run may prove more valuable than the gold, silver and bronze medals.

But remember the high point scorer wins the title of wing champion, the beautiful silver trophy of the Boston wing and a wonderful trip to Los Angeles, with all expenses paid, to compete in the national Junior Birdmen tournament.

The three events of the meet at Franklin Field for New England Junior Birdmen includes a cabin (commercial) model event which offers exceptional opportunity for the display of individual talents in model design and construction.

Among the latest entrants are: Dante Fiocchieri, 18, of Everett; Herbert K. Wing, 17, of Lawrence; Richard Lacasse, 14, of Roxbury; William Johnson, 16, of Haverhill; Joseph G. Sapunka, 18, of Shrewsbury; Henry LaFreniere, 14, of Cambridge; Robert Saltmarsh, 12, of East Milton, and Donald W. Bell, 19, of Wellesley.

ROCKLAND Units to Compete

Squadron report sheets contain all details of events interesting to Junior Birdmen, give the full name of visitors at meetings and sponsors, give rules and regulations for games and interesting or amusing events of contests held.

Members worked on their airpane models in anticipation of a contest to take place between themselves and the Lucky Tigers Squadron of the same community.

First air meet will be held at 6 p. m. today. Contestants will be permitted to give their models final flights. Following late, Edward Wegrzinski, promised to make a book shelf, as the library has grown to large proportions. In addition, he will make a bulletin board to put the latest air news. A point system has been established, based on behavior and activities. Each boy has a card on which is recorded merits and demerits. A reward will be given to the winner each month. Norman Gagnon was appointed to write the history of the squadron in book form. Each member will keep a scrapbook, for which he will be awarded merits. Next meeting will include a debate and a review of Eagle test questions.

* * *

Maurice Sadlock was elected to make the frame for the squadron charter. Costs to cover this single wingtip will be bought. Games and refreshments closed a meeting spent making model airplanes.

Roosevelt to Open Fair

By Universal Service

San Diego, Cal., May 20—Soon after nightfall on May 29, the voice of President Roosevelt will welcome a vast throng to the dream-come-true of romance and beauty that is arising as if by magic here in Balboa Park, as the California Pacific International Exposition.

Speaking over a telephone hookup from Washington, the President, who late this summer is to visit the exposition in person, is to dwell upon the high significance of America's 1935 World Fair. Public address loudspeakers are to carry his voice to the massed thousands.

As the Chief Executive finishes speaking, two orphan children, a boy and a girl—to be designated by the President this week — will throw switches that will transform the exposition grounds into a fairyland of many colors.

These youngsters symbolize the generation to come, the Pacific empire of the future, to which the exposition is dedicated.

As the grounds burst into dazzling light, combined bands will play "The Star Spangled Banner," and the glorious voice of Madame Ernestine Schumann Heink, will lead the throng in singing The national anthem.

Then, the entire first wing of the army air force will soar through the night sky, and above the roar of the planes' motors will be heard the thunderous booming of saluting guns.

Best Bets Tonight

8:30 p. m.—WEEI—William Daly's symphonic string orchestra, with mixed chorus.

9:30 p. m.—WNAC—"The Big Show," with Gertrude Niesen and Lud Gluskin's music.

10:00 p. m.—WBZ—The Cuckoo comedy program with Raymond Knight and Mrs. Pennyfeather, girls' vocal trio and male quartet.

RADIO QUERIES AND ANSWERS

Q.—Is Benny McLaughlin, the pianist and composer, still playing for the "Hum and Strum" team? Listener, of Malden.

A.—Benny and the boys broke off relations almost three years ago. Benny now plays for Alice Blue (Mrs. McLaughlin) and Joe Dunn, songster and monologue man.

Q.—Does Senator Huey Long pay for the time he uses on the air? Doris Paquet Coughlin buy his time also?

W. L., of Hyde Park.

A.—No, he does not. Yes, the periods are purchased by the National Union for Social Justice, the Father Coughlin organization.

J. H., of Plymouth.

Even-Stephen, of Braintree.

A.—Not at present, it isn't believed, although at one time the brothers were associated on the business end of the band management.

TEAMS GIVEN SHOOT MEDALS

New York, May 20—Medals were awarded yesterday to members of the Xavier high school teams who won second and third place in the William Randolph Hearst national rifle competition. The awards were made by Major Gen. N. F. Starling, U. S. army, inspector of R. O. T. C. units in the Second Corps area.

Granting of the silver and bronze medals came as a climax to the 37th annual military review held by the cadet corps of the school on Fordham University campus in the Bronx.

Silver medals were awarded to G. Agemennon, T. Kearns, A. Mulligan, J. Kenny and E. Salice. Bronze medals were awarded to J. Clark, H. Feiter, H. Kavookjan, F. Rousek and E. Paglianetti.

But it's true! Beginning today and for ten weeks only, the Boston Evening American, by special arrangement with the Winship-Boit Company of Wakefield, manufacturers of the expensive Winship Swim Suit (used by fashionable celebrities of the screen, stage, and radio), will distribute 100 Winship Swim Suits FREE!

Each week, ten Winship Swim Suits will be given as grand awards to successful "About Faces" solvers. Today's clues lead to the Metropolitan Theater where the screen presents Hollywood's leading cinema star in "Goin' to Town" and the stage offers "Hollywood Hoofs."

With these clues and the letter guide it should be a cinch for you to identify today's "About Faces" stars in the squares beneath each drawing. Try to answer the daily question, too. Additional prizes of $15 in cash and 30 guest theater tickets are also included.

Save all six of this week's "About Faces" series. A new series begins every Monday and ends every Saturday. Mail all completed solutions to: The About Faces Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

It is important that in addition to the correct solutions that all contestants send in specifications regarding size, weight, male or female, one or two-piece suit, and color preference, on a separate sheet of paper.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

MONDAY, MAY 20, 1935

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION BY MORE THAN 80,000

Freedom of Press

Bought by Martyrs' Blood for American People

IN THE history of the American struggle for freedom of the press, there have been two memorable names.

First of these was John Peter Zenger. The second was Elijah Parish Lovejoy.

Zenger's trial in New York in 1735 planted in America the principles of free speech and a free press which made possible the Declaration of Independence, and which became a fundamental of the Constitution.

Just a short while ago Zenger's name was suitably honored at a time when the freedom of the press was becoming an issue of the present day.

Last Saturday Colby College at Waterville, Me., held exercises commemorating Lovejoy, the "first American martyr to the cause."

By means that are subtle our traditional freedom of the press is being doubly assailed.

On one side are the threatening encroachments of bureaucracy—tending inevitably to the kind of repression against which Zenger fought and won.

On the other side the forces of lawlessness and sedition parade and menace—disloyal, alien forces which would subvert America's institutions and destroy all freedom of any kind.

The very effort to coerce loyal newspapers into cowardly silence by mob appeal is again abroad in the land as it was in Lovejoy's time.

AGAINST these usurpant and vicious elements the creed for which Lovejoy died must be steadfastly maintained—"The liberty," in Lovejoy's own words, "to speak, to write and to publish . . . being amenable to the laws of my country for the same."

And President Franklin W. Johnson of Colby spoke wisely and well when, in announcing the occasion, he said:

"There is a critical need today for reaffirming the American principle of free speech and a free press.

"The Fascists, Nazis, Communists and demagogues of all brands can obtain their power and maintain their thrones ONLY BY A COMPLETE SUBJECTION OF THE NEWSPAPERS IN THEIR COUNTRIES."

Eleventh in Shipbuilding

Why Not First?

The United States has dropped from the tenth to the eleventh place in the ranks of shipbuilding nations.

We are building no more than 1½ per cent of the world's merchant tonnage. Great Britain is building 43.9 per cent.

Perhaps Secretary Wallace may be proud of this record.

It is shameful that the greatest nation on earth with economic, political, financial, cultural and other interests extending to every far corner of the world, should have to depend on others for maintaining contacts on which its greatness is at least partially based.

Those Machine Guns

Dangerous to Carry

Last year he sought to have the Legislature pass a bill providing life imprisonment for the illegal possession of machine guns.

He failed.

Both House and Senate have passed this measure to help end banditry.

Parties Are Needed

So Why Ban Them?

"Consistency, thou art a jewel," was an old popular saying that can be revived for comment on these Beacon Hill doings.

Service of Merit

Cape Cod CCC Camp

The Roland C. Nickerson State Park at East Brewster is to have a CCC camp next Summer.

The boys will busy themselves with clearing up the 1700 acres of pine land given the Commonwealth last year by Mrs. Nickerson, in memory of her husband and son. They both died in service during the World War.

When Television Comes

What Will We Call It?

We'll have television in many homes within a year, the wise ones inform us. But how about a name for it in popular speech? The word itself will last no longer than "cinematograph."

That became movies, and then talkies. So, what next?

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, May 20—Diary: Out to bid on a Chippendale chair at an auction but mightily outbid. Then a wander through jousting San Juan Hill, a snack at a Bickford and back to my chambers to find a sheaf of his salty chansons that Dwight Fiske sent and a note from Bill Boyd's sister in Ohio.

O. O. McIntyre

Working in the high heat until Tom Millard came by, so cool and immaculate I felt refreshed. And much gothic talk of our Missouri birthplaces, of the James boys, Jay Price, cornpone and pot likker.

A yearly frog leg repast at Ben Riley's and an Englishman next table, whose favorite word was "whilst," talked despairingly of world chaos, of which I am sick hearing.

And at another table Libby Holman, whose profile is the most irregular I ever saw. So reading Louis Bromfield's autographed copy of "The Man Who Had Everything."

The Morgan twins—Gloria Vanderbilt and Lady Furness—whose social haloes were threatened with tarnish by an unsavory trial, have accomplished the smartest bit of personal promotion New York has seen in many a moon.

Instead of seeking seclusion figuratively to nurse their hurts, they plunged into a round of charities, opened a floray dress-making salon and otherwise caught the public favor by a devastating indifference to mongering.

So adroit any public sympathy not acquired seemed to swing to them 100 per cent. For the first time in my memory of court trials a rash of editorials not only exonerated the justice who deprived the mother of her daughter, but clamored insistently that the child be returned.

Barney Gallant, who gave his long established Greenwich Village taverns to his head waiter and decided to relax and knock about the world, found he could not stand the tedium after two sabbatical years.

He has decided again to exploit his British accent and professional bonhomie for the stayouts. But this time he leaves the Tiny Tims, Sonias and the sundry sandaled and smocked, to invade the very heart of the new Cote d'Or in the Fashionable Fifties.

Barney, Russian born, is one of the bright-eyed romanticists of the catering world whose career has included press agenting Mexican revolutions, free lance journalizing in far off lands, painting in Montparnassse attics and living with Bedouins as an adopted tribesman.

He has made and lost several small fortunes. His distinguishing feature is a blue black beard that has to be razored twice a day. He has not been to bed before 8 a. m. in 20 years or breakfasted before 4 p. m.

Another caterer, well known to the Broadway sporting crowds, is also emerging from a different sort of eclipse. He is known to race track followers as "Beefsteak Charlie," and his place a few steps off Broadway with pine table tops and sawdust carpet was usually packed.

But, as restaurants will, it sagged into bankruptcy, almost overnight. And "Charlie," who is a ringer for Al Smith, is cooking in a Jerry-built lunch stand for a comeback stake.

Bagatelles: Magazine editors say that Royal Brown, stone deaf, is top in writing young lovers' dialogue . . . Jerome Kern made more money collecting first editions than he did in 20 years of writing hit songs . . . Jack Dempsey has three full dress suits but is afraid to wear them.

Listen, World!

Do Bosses Prefer 'Em Married?

I like to Start Something in this column. Something that will cause the family to think quick and talk noisy far, far into night.

That sort of commotion is good for both families and newspapers—usually I can promote my rumpus without outside aid.

Elsie Robinson

IN THE PANSY BED

"I tried it first on my own domestic outfit.

"We ended in the pansy bed, after demolishing all the best china, busting the bridge lamp, biting three taffeta pillows to shreds and wallowing in the goldfish bowl.

"Which I call a good test of any newspaper article. I accordingly pass it on to you—hoping for the worst.

"I have noticed discussions in your column about the comparative efficiency of single or married women workers.

"It seems to me that it is one of the biggest subjects before the public today and I'd like to have my say about it. I'm all for the married worker and here are my reasons.

"THE MARRIED GIRL—She is superior as a worker to the single girl because she is working for a purpose. In almost every case she is helping to pay for her own home, or contributing to the support of a mother, brother or sister.

MORE ATTENTIVE

"She is more attentive to her work, because she has so much at stake that she cannot afford to be fired. She does not primp for the office sheiks, because she has a man of her own whom she is tickled to rush home to, to feed and pamper.

"After finishing her work at home, the married woman wife is content to get to bed so she can be fresh and lively in the morning. Not once do you hear a peep out of her, though she may be terribly tired.

"She is happy working toward her ideal, and when her dream comes true she is willing to step out of the office into her home to make room for someone who needs the job more than she does.

"THE SINGLE GIRL—Almost always the single girl gets to the office many minutes late, takes more minutes to put her first layer of war paint over her unwashed face, smears on the Cupid's bow, then saunters out into the main office to make a killing.

"If she is a steno she will sit and yawn between the letters, uttering occasional 'what was that' or 'I beg your pardons.'

"Sits half awake all day wondering what will be the best date, whether Jack will call, where Jim is, etc., etc. Writes a little note to every Tom, Dick and Harry.

"Phones and tries to make a date for lunch. Sees a new guy in the office and quits everything in her effort to land him. When five o'clock comes she still has a number of letters unfinished, but does she bother to do them?

"She does NOT, for she has a date with Phil that evening and must rush home, grab a bite, leap into her best clothes and dash out again on a mad carousal until 3 a. m. And so on, week after week.

"And this is why more and more married women are being given jobs in preference to single girls.

"MABEL."

Have you my permission to respond? You have. With this exception.

Doubt

By Edgar A. Guest

I would not do away with doubt
For when a thing is plain to me
And I have worked its secret out

The proven way is paved with stone

I like to wander out and far
Beyond the common rut and groove
Where all the great truths hidden are.
Believing what I cannot prove.

The test of courage is to stand
To dangers that we cannot see;
To fight with heart and brain and hand
Not knowing what the end will be.

On Calling Names

Human Side of the News

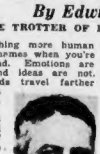
By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

There's nothing more human than calling names when you're good and mad. Emotions are contagious and Emotion words than ideas words, and hit harder.

Politicians know this and make use of invective where they are only pretending to be mad.

The result is the same, whether it is a real or simulated fury. The expert name-caller will go far in politics.



Edwin C Hill

OLD-TIME AMERICANS

Visiting New York, he takes a few exhibition pot shots at Huey Long to be sure, and just enough to show that the salt of early American political discussion hasn't lost savor.

New York was edified, thereby revealing that big-town people are still old-time Americans, for there is nothing more authentically American than slam bang word-milling under livery stable rules and no rulling of punches.

Deplorable taste, of course, but figure it any way you want to, the rough and tumble word mauler always gets the decision over any erudite and elegant contender.

The psychology of it seems simple. These rampant and released statesmen often are saying what a whole army of tamed, manicured, barbered and perhaps hen-pecked citizens would like to say.

I always liked the story of old man Cupfer and old man Payne, out in Fresno, California, many years ago. Mr. Cupfer, a bent, wheezy, white-bearded octogenarian, ran a little weekly paper, which he kicked out on a Washington hand press, and hiked around the town in a basket.

He was a master of searing red-hot invective. As his paper did not go through the mails, he enjoyed a wide, in fact, endless latitude in picturesque denunciation of anyone he didn't like. He made the most of it.

Mr. Payne, also venerable and white-bearded, was Mr. Cupfer's Boswell. He regarded the editor as the greatest literary genius in all the history of America. He clipped pretty nearly all the paper and stuffed his pockets with Mr. Cupfer's gems of prose.

So Mr. Cupfer fixes up something special for Mr. Rowell. He put in boss-car type, clear across the top of his front page: "CHESTER ROWELL IS A——" He spelled it all out in full although, of course, it wouldn't do to print the full line in this family newspaper.

Old man Payne, trembling with excitement, as he always did when the paper came out, put on his spectacles, and read the seven-column blast backward and forward lovingly, with mounting ecstasy in his face.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

MODEL WIFE—1935

How our ideals do change! Almost as rapidly as the fashions on the Rue de Rivoli or the "lines" of motor cars.

Helen Rowland

Once upon a time, to be an ideal wife required only the patience of an angel, the tact of a politician, the readiness of a valet and the ability to manipulate a kitchen range and make a good apple pie.

Now, a thoroughly modern man would not only be bored to tears by that Victorian model, but would probably consider that he had been short-changed in the matrimonial deal, when he found out what he had drawn.

To meet all the needs and requirements of the 1935 matrimonial situation, a woman must be something more than a darner-of-sox and a soother-of-headaches.

She must have the ability to run a house uptown, and, if necessary, to run an office, a job or a business downtown. Because now there is often an acute need for two pay-envelopes, where there used to be only one.

She may not have to be her husband's alarm clock, cheer leader and valet, or to go around picking up his clothes, hunting his hat or cleaning up the rubbish he has left.

But she must be up before the crack of dawn to run him to the station in the flivver, and right on the job to meet him on the 5:15.

She may not have the sweet temper of an angel; but she must have the figure of a sylph, the style of a Fifth Avenue manikin and the good grooming of a pet circus horse, no matter at what bitter sacrifices she attains these things.

She may not be able to make an apple pie, but she must be able to change a tire, and must know almost as much as an electrician, to manipulate all the gadgets in a modern kitchen.

She may not know how to mix batter cakes; but must know how to mix good drinks (soft or hard), to balance a budget, and to rustle up a snappy supper at a few moments' notice.

She may not have all the cute tricks and flattering sweetness of the old-fashioned "clinging vine"; but there are times when she must have the agility of a fireman, the skin of a rhinoceros, the quick wit of a magician—and, at the same time, the cheerfulness and placidity of a French doll.

Being a model wife has never been a sinecure; but, if you WORK at it, the job is probably twice as strenuous and exacting in these days of "woman's freedom" as it was in the easy-going days of her economic "slavery."

Blunder Takes a Life

By Winifred Black

He wasn't a boy of very good reputation. He had been in trouble two or three times before, and nobody was especially sorry for him when they caught him and took him to court to be tried.

Winifred Black

He wasn't hanged by legal methods. He wasn't even lynched, so even the rough mob justice had nothing to do with the case.

He died before his time because some careless clerk in the office of a state official forgot to mail the reprieve which would have given him a chance to appeal for a new trial.

The reprieve arrived at the prison three days after the half-grown boy—he was just 19, if I remember correctly—was dead.

Now, he may not be any particular loss either to the state, his family, or even to himself, but after all—

Who is the clerk who dared to forget to mail that reprieve, do you suppose?

That is part of his business, the sending of appeals and reprieves and letters to the executives of prisons and to judges.

He neglected his business, just because he was too busy lighting cigarettes one after another, perhaps, or writing love letters to his "sweetie."

Or was it a girl who did this thing, a little, silly, giggling, frivolous girl who is always powdering her nose and losing her lipstick, never realizing for one single minute that the life of a fellow creature hung upon the conscientious performance of her duty.

I'd hate to be that girl, now—wouldn't you?

If she really did let that letter lie in a corner of the desk basket forgotten, don't you suppose she wishes she had kept her mind on her work that day—just for once?

Isn't It So?

There is nothing new but what has been forgotten.
